Search on despite new blast

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The big coal mine where 78 men have been trapped for nearly seven days throbbled with another explosion Tuesday, soon after a mine official said the search would continue, no matter how remote the possibility of rescue.

The blast belched smoke from one of the portals of Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 and was another setback in efforts to reach the entombed men.

There has been no contact with any of the 78 since the first explosion ripped through the mine and set off intense fire deep within it last Wednesday. The 99 men of the midnight shift were about to finish work when the mine shuddered from concussions. Twenty-one miners escaped or were rescued.

The latest blast—14th to wrack the mine which sprawls over eight miles—came just after Consolidation Coal Co. President John Corcoran told a news conference: "No matter how remote the possibility, we won't close any avenue of escape. We won't cut the rope."

He said the mine would not be sealed "until a reason for keeping it open does not exist."

Sealing the mine would shut off air flow through its portals and would extinguish the fire. But it also would cut off any air supply to the trapped men.

8th in home killed by flu

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The eighth death from the Hong Kong strain of Asian influenza at Riverview Home for the Aged was reported Tuesday by the institution's medical director.

"There have been eight deaths in which the Hong Kong virus is considered a contributing factor," Dr. Christopher M. Papa, the medical director, said.

"Eight other deaths at Riverview this month are not considered by us, nor by city, state or federal public health officials, to have any connection with flu."

Dr. Alfred S. Bogucki, chief of epidemiology in the City Health Department, said, meanwhile, no other deaths in the city have been attributed to Hong Kong flu.

He said, however, flu is not a reportable disease, and is not always mentioned in a death certificate of a person who has been gravely ill for some time.

Thus, Dr. Bogucki said, "excess deaths" are used as a unit of measurement.

The death of a Philadelphia woman in her 50s was reported in a suburban hospital. Listed as a victim of pneumonia, cultures from her lungs later revealed the Hong Kong virus.

Dr. Bogucki said Hong Kong flu is known to be present in other institutions, including University of Pennsylvania Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia State Hospital (Ryberry) and Ingalls House, a home for incurables.

He said the medical directors of three colleges and several industrial firms have reported a rise in complaints of sore throats, coughing, sore muscles and other symptoms of flu.

But the increase is only slightly greater than usually reported at this time of the year, he said.

Without laboratory confirmation, Dr. Bogucki said, it's impossible to tell whether the illness is influenza or some other respiratory disorder.

Democrats tap Fineman as $21,000 speaker

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman of Philadelphia was slated by the Democrats Tuesday to preside over the chamber as speaker during the 1969-70 legislative sessions.

Fineman, 47, was nominated to the $21,000-a-year post as House and Senate Democrats gathered here to select their leaders for the next two years. The nomination was tantamount to election since Democrats will control the House.

Rep. K. Leroy Davis, 48, of Pittsburgh was elected majority leader, becoming the first Negro to hold such a high legislative post. Davis for the past two years has served as minority whip.

Senate Democrats, who will retain their minority status in 1969-70, re-elected their present leaders, headed by Sen. Ernest P. Klure, Beaver.

Home in bed with influenza, Fineman was unable to attend his party caucus, but he issued a statement in which he indirectly praised fellow lawmakers for refusing to bow to outside pressures.

"Today was more than just a victory for named individuals. Today's action was a victory for Democratic legislators," Fineman said.

The selection of Fineman as speaker-designate was seen as a political setback to Philadelphia Mayor James H. J. Tate, who had supported the candidacy of Rep. Harry H. J. Comer, the senior member of the

Nixon's new aide in London

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon named the last of his top White House assistants Tuesday and dispatched his newest aide to London to take a look at a British "think tank" specializing in defense matters.

Nixon named Robert F. Ellsworth, 42, an attorney and former congressman from Kansas as an assistant. Ellsworth was national political director during the campaign.

The new aide was ordered to fly to London Tuesday night to study the "manner and mode of operation" of the Institute of Strategic Studies, and compare it to 16 American "think tanks" such as the Rand Corp.

Ellsworth is to return to New York Sunday, and have lunch with Henry Ford II to discuss the National Alliance for Business, a group involved in such matters as providing jobs for the hard-core unemployed.

The new assistant thus will be involved in a broad sweep of governmental affairs for the president-elect in the space of a few days. Ellsworth's White House job was described as one with a "broad general charter."

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press spokesman, said Ellsworth is to be "a generalist in the true sense of the word." Ziegler said he will perform special projects for Nixon, ranging from foreign affairs through the cities and states.

Ziegler said the Ellsworth appointment rounds out the highest level of White House assistants. Bryce Harlow and H. R. "Bob" Haldeman also hold the title of assistant. John Ehrlichman is counsel and Herbert Goldhamer is director of communications for the executive branch.

Nixon spent the day working in his 38th-floor offices.

Long Island runs again

NEW YORK (AP) — The Long Island Rail Road announced Tuesday night that trainmen had agreed to end a two-day strike which had cut off service to 260,000 daily travelers.

The line said it hoped to restore operations to near normal in time for this morning's rush hour.

With all service suspended, commuters by the thousands took to bumper-to-bumper highways during the second day of a strike by 1,600 members of Local 517, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Saigon joins talks, ends long boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Saigon announced Tuesday night that South Vietnam has agreed to join in the Paris peace talks with North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front.

The agreement, announced simultaneously in Washington and Saigon, was welcomed by President Johnson as opening a new hopeful phase of the negotiations. But the President cautioned again that hard bargaining and fighting still lie ahead. His statement was issued shortly after he arrived at his Texas ranch for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The Saigon regime, which has balked at sitting down at the conference table with the Vietcong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, will be "the main spokesman on all matters of principal concern to South Vietnam," the U.S. statement said.

There was no indication of how soon the South Vietnamese delegation will reach Paris, but a U.S. official predicted that the talks can be started before Jan. 1.

As made public here, the Saigon statement said that South Vietnam is prepared to participate in the new talks in Paris with the Hanoi delegation to show the good will of the Republic of Vietnam and to test the good faith of Hanoi.

While giving Saigon the leading voice on South Vietnam's internal matters, the agreement reserves to the United States the dominant role in discussions affecting the U.S. military forces and the withdrawal of troops, both allied and North Vietnamese.

The U.S. statement which accompanied Saigon's pledge to end its boycott of the Paris negotiations laid down a series of U.S. government assurances which had been negotiated by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, the American representative at Paris.

The United States has not and will not agree to any four-sided conference, the statement said. It specified that the meeting will have only two sides. But it added that there would be separate U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations.

Allies move into DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces thrust into the demilitarized zone Tuesday for the first time since the Nov. 1 bombing halt and tangled with North Vietnamese soldiers in two raging firefights.

Military spokesmen said U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen invaded the corridor because of stepped up enemy artillery fire and a possible threat to the Leatherneck outpost at Con Thien, just below the DMZ.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials contend President Johnson's order stopping the bombing of North Vietnam was not "abusing" the DMZ by using it for military operations. The U.S. Command said there have been 267 "indications of enemy presence and activity" in the zone this month.

The two battles, just inside the southern end of the DMZ, were touched off when Marine and South Vietnamese patrols slipped across to scout enemy troop movements and gun positions.

Reinforcements were rushed in to relieve the 3rd Marine Division patrol when it came under heavy fire from troops entrenched in fortified positions just 500 yards inside the zone.

Jet air strikes and artillery were called in to silence North Vietnamese automatic weapons fire.

SEC ruling places curbs on offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission Tuesday ordered curbs on two offices of the Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith brokerage firm for what the SEC charged was an inside information case.

The SEC said that Merrill Lynch, the country's largest securities firm, unlawfully disclosed inside financial information to selected investors.

Merrill Lynch denied the accusations of wrongdoing but consented to the agency's findings and sanctions in order to settle its part in a case stemming from transactions in shares of the Douglas Aircraft Co. in 1966.

The SEC closed down Merrill Lynch's New York institutional sales office for 21 days starting Dec. 5.

word on U.S. or North Vietnamese casualties.

A U.S. spokesman said the fact the Leathernecks made contact so close to the southern perimeter "is a fairly good confirmation" of intelligence reports indicating a threat to Con Thien.

Seven miles to the east, South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing at least three North Vietnamese soldiers and taking one prisoner during a brief clash north of Gio Linh and about a mile inside the southern half of the DMZ. Gio Linh is the eastern anchor of the allied bases strung along the northern frontier. The South Vietnamese ran into troops from the 138th North Vietnamese Regiment while looking for gun positions used in shelling their border positions.

The U.S. Command had announced earlier that American guns and fighter planes attacked North Vietnamese positions in the DMZ Monday after five American reconnaissance planes were fired on. Two of the reconnaissance planes were hit by machine-gun fire but returned safely to their bases.

Fire from American artillery, Navy ships and Air Force fighter-bombers destroyed three machine-gun positions, two bunkers and 61 yards of trenches in the two halves of the DMZ, headquarters said.

Search efforts continued for four crewmen missing aboard two U.S. jet planes downed over North Vietnam Monday. Details were withheld while rescue efforts were under way.

North Vietnam charged in a Radio Hanoi broadcast that U.S. fighter-bombers strafed and fired rockets Tuesday over Quang Binh Province, 40 miles north of the DMZ, and over Nghe An Province, 175 miles north of the border. It demanded an end to what it called a resumption of the U.S. air war against North Vietnam.

No paper on Thursday

The Pocono Record will not be published on Thursday because of the Thanksgiving Day holiday. Publication will resume with Friday morning's paper.

The Record editorial offices will be closed until 2 P.M. Thursday.

However, the Record's business office will open all day today, closed all day Thursday and reopen at 9 a.m. Friday.

Leading cheers for Mountaineers

row, same order, features Barbara Reese, Karen Auer, Sue Warner and Kathy Palmer. Sue Frantz, left, and Debbie Zateeny are perched high upon the shoulders of fellow cheerleaders calling for greater support for the Mountaineers.

Shafer urges prayerful day of thanks, sharing bounty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvanians, urged by their governor to show their gratitude for the good life by sharing their abundance, observe Thanksgiving 1968 Thursday.

Most apparently will observe it in traditional ways, attending football games or parades, or relaxing at home after feasting on turkey.

And for some it will be a day of tragedy on the highway. Gov. Shafer, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, recalled the misery that exists in the world. He urged the day "be observed by prayerful thanksgiving to God and urge our gratitude be evidenced by sharing our abundance with those in need throughout the world."

In Philadelphia, policemen showed they cared by packing 350 turkey dinner baskets for needy families. Red patrol wagons will serve as delivery trucks for the dinners, which Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo said was a way for police department personnel to show their thanks for the help given by "the citizens of Philadelphia."

Authorities open three new tunnels

BREEZEWOOD, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Shafer opened three new tunnels and a 13-mile by-pass of two old tunnels on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Tuesday, hailing them as evidence that the state is committed to developing the finest highway system in the nation.

The new tunnels through Blue Kittatinny and Tuscarora mountains and the by-pass of the Ray's and Sideling Hill tunnels is part of a $100 million modernization program on the granddaddy of U. S. toll roads. Shafer headed a group of public officials and turnpike executives who motorized from Harrisburg to a spot between the new Blue Mountain and Kittatinny Mountain tunnels.

There, he unveiled a plaque of the tunnels which, when modernization of the old two-lane tunnels are completed, will permit four-lane traffic through the mountains.

No progress for 'pilgrim'

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — How's this for Thanksgiving tradition?

James Bradley of Rt. 2 Douglasville went hunting recently for a turkey for his Thanksgiving table as he has done for 20 years. But he came home empty handed.

"I'm a real pilgrim," he said. "The only problem is that this makes an even 20 years that I've come home from a turkey hunt without a turkey."

"I guess it doesn't matter though."

"My family and I are spending the Thanksgiving holiday with relatives anyway."

in keeping our city one of peace and security."

In a kind of turnaround, a group of women in West Philadelphia will cook turkey dinner for policemen on duty in Philadelphia's 16th District Thursday.

"By preparing these dinners," said Rizzo, "the women in West Philadelphia will be making Thanksgiving a very special day for the men who serve them."

There was an abundance of turkey and at good prices, according to Robert White, officer in charge of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's dairy and poultry news in Philadelphia.

"From all indications there are ample supplies in all weights of turkeys, and there will be a good demand for them. It should be a very satisfactory season," said White.

Football fans wanting to watch a college game will have to turn to the television, since the 1968 Pennsylvania college season is just about wrapped up.

But there will be some traditional high school games for after dinner viewing, including the Mount Carmel-Shamokin game for the southern division championship of the Eastern Conference. Another will be the Northeast-Central High School game in Philadelphia, a rivalry that started in 1896 and the Haverford-Upper Merion game.

Insurance loan rules stiffened

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell announced Tuesday the issuance of stiffer loan regulations for some 180 mutual fire and casualty insurance companies based in the state.

The regulation bans redemption of certain classes of loans to mutual insurance companies which would reduce the company surplus "below that required by statute."

It also sets new guidelines for information to be supplied to the state Insurance Department before such loans, commonly referred to as "809 advances," can be made and specifies that such advances and loans must be cash transactions.

"Because of the important role 809 advances may play in maintaining solvency of a mutual insurance company, it is essential that the circumstances under which they are made be closely scrutinized by the Insurance Department," Maxwell said.

"In addition, the fact that 809 advances do not constitute a liability or claim against the mutual insurance company or any assets requires that high and explicit standards be established for the redemption or payment of such advances," he said.

An insurance department aide said the new regulation was formulated to combat "various incidents which have arisen in the past."

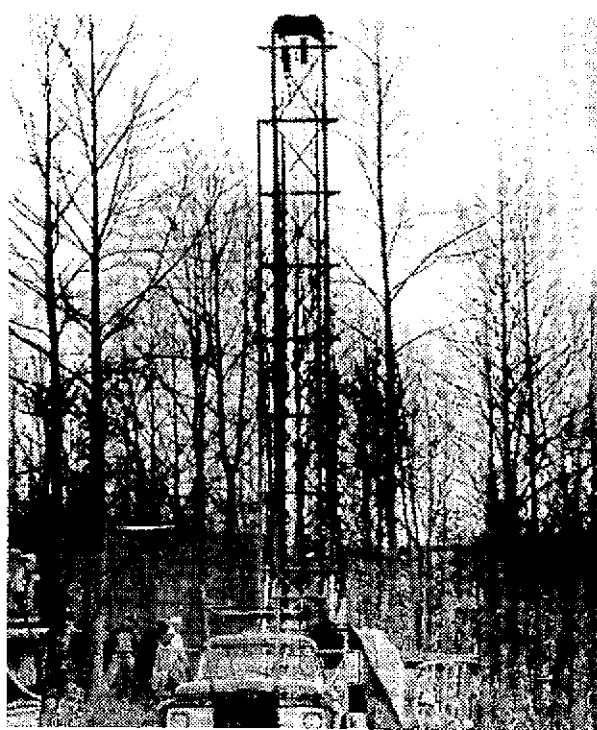

However, he pointed out, very few mutual companies carry "a substantial amount" of 809 advances which are unsecured, high interest loans.

The new regulation does not apply to mutual life insurance companies because they are not permitted under law to seek such loans.

Steam plant probe due

HARRISBURG (AP) — The safety and adequacy of the Scranton Steam Heat Co. plant and lines was questioned Tuesday by the state Public Utility Commission.

The commission reported it was ordering an investigation of the facilities after receiving reports of excessive steam billowing from manholes, blinding motorists and creating traffic hazards.

Dig for miners

A number seven hole is drilled at the Mountaineer Coal Company's Number Nine mine in Mannington, W. Va. Tuesday. Several holes are being drilled into the mine in hope of making contact with any possible survivors trapped in the mine in the wake of a fire and explosion. Seventy-eight men have been trapped since Nov. 20.

U. S. fears leak on 'nuke' nests

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are concerned that spies with access to NATO's secrets may have told the Soviet Union where American nuclear weapon warheads are stored in Europe.

These officials are looking to the Turkish interrogation of a principal espionage suspect to show how much damage, if any, has been done to West Europe's defense plans.

An investigation centering chiefly in West Germany has been under way for nearly two months.

But so far, U.S. authorities say, they still don't know for certain whether critical information has reached the Soviets.

At the top of the U.S. worry list is the possibility that the locations of U.S. atomic weapons storage points in Europe may have been revealed.

The warheads may be moved to other hiding places as a precaution.

The United States has about

7,200 tactical nuclear weapons in Western Europe including battlefield missiles with ranges up to about 400 miles, artillery and jet fighter-bomber ammunition.

Whether for U.S. or allied weapons, nuclear warheads are stored at strategic locations under American guard and under strict U.S. control. They would be mated with the weapons if and when needed.

Every man has his price.

These are ours. And you don't have to figure out how much the extras will add to the price of the Volkswagen you buy. We already figured them in.

By building them in. Things like heater/defrosters, windshield washers and adjustable bucket seats are part of the car. You can't own a Volkswagen without owning them, too.

(Things like whitewalls are extra, as you might expect. But we tell you that in the *.)

A Volkswagen won't only cost you less to drive out in. It'll cost you less to drive around in.

VW sedans (even the 65 hp Fastback and Squareback) average 27 miles to a gallon. Even the biggest VW, our boxy station wagon, averages 23.

They all take oil by the pint. (Even the expensive-looking Karmann Ghia.) And never cost you a cent for anti-freeze. (Volkswagen engines are air-cooled.)

But if you still don't care to sell out so cheap, there is at least one way to raise the price of a Volkswagen.

You can add the automatic stick shift to the bug or the Karmann Ghia. Or full automatic to the Fastback or Squareback.

If for no money at all, of course, you can come in and see them all in person.

Bangor accident mystery

MOUNT BETHEL — Calvin Messinger, 34, of Bangor R. D. 2, is in St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem, with a depressed skull fracture and his condition is listed as critical as the result of a mysterious accident.

Messinger was injured Monday at 10 p.m. on Rt. 166, East Bangor-Mount Bethel Highway, and taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County. He was transferred to St. Luke's Tuesday morning.

Upper Mount Bethel Township Police Chief Arthur Stout said he does not know if Messinger was driving his car and thrown to the highway or if he was pushing the car and after a collision fell to the ground.

Messinger is unconscious and as yet has been unable to be interviewed.

Messinger's car was struck by a car driven by Phillip P. Capone Jr., 39, of 509 Grand Ave., Bangor.

Capone told police that he was traveling east on Rt. 166 and as he came over a knoll in the highway the Messinger car was backing from a private driveway and the two cars collided.

Messinger was brought to General Hospital of Monroe County by the Liberty Ambulance from Bangor.

Record Correspondent

MILFORD — It's a wonderful life... and people are nicer than anywhere; that's the philosophy of Arthur Kennedy, new assistant director of the Pinchot Institute For Conservation Studies at Milford.

To his job at the Institute, Kennedy brings an intense interest in interpretative photography, people, conservation, and life... with the emphasis on life.

There are few people in this world who enjoy their work so much that they consider it to be like play. Art Kennedy is one of these fortunate folk. A lifelong love of the outdoors and sports, and an acquired love of photography, have combined to give him ready tools with which to carry out his work as a conservation specialist and forest naturalist.

Born in Western Maryland, he lived part of his early life in West Virginia and Missouri, and then entered the United States Navy where he found real expression through expert photography.

He and his wife Maryann were married while he was in the service... (the met her in a sandstorm in New Mexico)... and then to Guam. After a year at Washington, D.C., Navy Photography Center, he was discharged, and was awarded a scholarship to William Jewell. He later transferred to Oregon's Corvallis College, and went on to the University of Washington, at Seattle, where he was awarded his bachelor of science degree in forestry management.

The next year, he received his master's degree in forestry recreation from the same university.

New people

It was in the interim between these two degrees that Arthur Kennedy met Alaska. He discovered a new, progressive people in an old, rugged, dramatic setting.

"The people are not the kind who sit on their hands," he said. "They are not willing, but eager, to move ahead."

"Evidence of this young-at-heart feeling among the people is the complete eradication of all traces of the disastrous earthquake. Today — three years after the quake — there is no sign that the country was once written off by the devastation."

Alaska, Kennedy found, is "different." It is a country of contrasts, with most of the characteristics of the United States proper scattered across its acreage. From the flat, sea level areas rise unexpected mountain peaks. There is a part of the country that resembles Pennsylvania, and another that looks like Idaho, and another like the Caribbean.

In Alaska, the young man — he is 33 — "interpreted the natural phenomena" of the National Forests to campers, visitors, families who wanted to know why glacial ice is blue; why trees grow; why snow is white; and why there are avalanches. In brief, he gave on-the-spot education in the outdoors to people surrounded by evidences of beauty and growth in the rugged wilderness country.

Entire program... Kennedy set up the whole program for the Forestry Service, and soon college students were giving slide programs and talks throughout a 13-hour day, seven days a week. Visitors' centers were built; nature trails were set up... the camping experience in Alaska became more meaningful and a deep appreciation of natural resources became apparent in the visitor who had learned the "why" of conservation, in the field.

As the young American became more and more acquainted with Alaska, he found it to be his kind of country. He worked to design, produce and supply the photographs for a four-color brochure on the Chugach National Forest, scene of Alaska's discovery. The Chugach, oldest National Forest in Alaska, was named for the Chugach Eskimos, who made their home in the Prince William Sound area. It is one of the first reserves to be withdrawn from public domain after the establishment of the National Forest system in 1891, and encompasses nearly five million acres.

Kennedy worked at the Mendenhall Visitor Center, at the spectacular Mendenhall Glacier, a center which serves as headquarters for the Forest Naturalists who are in Alaska to interpret for visitors the unique landscape of the glacier-carved area. The Center, a soaring, modernistic, window-decked building, is fifteen miles from Juneau, in the Tongass National Forest.

Preparation for his work in Alaska was laid through his work as a research assistant on a National Science Foundation grant, when he did research on forests in Oregon, and later as recreation planner for the U.S. Forest Service in that state, where he designed several campgrounds which have since been built.

Far reaching effects

From Alaska, Kennedy came to Milford, where, at the picturesque Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies which was dedicated by the late President John F. Kennedy shortly before his assassination, he began work which will have far-reaching effects on the school children, and, eventually, the adults of the nation.

The aim of the Institute is to set up outdoor educational programs including promotion of the true philosophy and technique of conservation, which may be included in school curricula across the land. The objective of the program is to design and develop guides for the school systems so that children may build a solid foundation and background of knowledge concerning the natural resources of their country, since they will be the ones who will, as they mature, make decisions on forests and parks and land use which will affect generations to come.

The Pinchot Institute operates now, on a limited basis soon to be expanded, as a conference center, a memorial to the late Gifford Pinchot, twice governor of Pennsylvania and an ardent conservationist whose views often collided head-on with those of politicians of his time.

Pen Argyl woman appeals

STROUDSBURG — Phillip H. Williams, attorney for Kathryn Cesare, Pen Argyl, Tuesday filed a motion for a new trial limited to the determination of liability.

Mrs. Cesare was one of two defendants in a trespass case which was tried in the Monroe County Court earlier this month.

She was found guilty of negligence and the jury set the damages at $7,000. The second defendant, Jay Harold Houser, East Stroudsburg, R.D. 2, was found not guilty of negligence.

The outcome of the verdict was that Mrs. Cesare was held liable for the sum of $7,000.

Plaintiffs in the case were Richard Scott Matlock, a minor by Richard C. and Shirley A. Matlock, and Richard C. and Shirley A. Matlock in their own right.

Richard Scott was awarded $3,000 and his parents were awarded $4,000 by the jury.

Against law

Williams' reasons for the motion requesting a new trial were that the determination that Mrs. Cesare is alone liable to all plaintiffs was against the law and the charge of the court and also that the determination was against the evidence itself and the weight of the evidence.

Other reasons for the motion were that the determination that Jay Harold Houser is not alone liable to any or all of the plaintiffs was against the law and the charge of the court and that it was against the evidence itself and the weight of the evidence.

Bangor resident, 81, killed when car rams into trailer

MOUNT BETHEL — An 81-year-old Bangor man was killed instantly Monday at 4:05 p.m. when he was thrown from his car and run over by the wheels of a trailer.

Dead is Raymond Traves of 512 W. High Street.

According to Upper Mount Bethel Township Police Chief Arthur Stout, Traves was traveling north on Legislative Route 48031 and he had stopped at its intersection with Rt. 166, the East Bangor-Mount Bethel Highway.

Traves, according to Chief Stout, had the sun in his eyes and pulled out into the line of traffic and crashed into the tractor driven by Howard W. Shumaker, 36, of Lewistown R.D. 4. The force of the crash spun the Traves car around and threw Traves to the highway.

The car then hit the rear of the trailer and the trailer wheels passed over Traves' head, killing him. The car spun around again and came to a stop with the rear of the car against a post alongside the highway.

Northampton County Coroner Joseph Reichel pronounced

Traves dead at the scene. Shumaker, Stout said, swerved in an attempt to avoid a collision but could not miss the Traves car.

Mrs. Ada Traves, a passenger in her husband's car, was taken to Warren Hospital, Phillipsburg, N.J.

Police said the Traves car is a total loss and estimated damage to the tractor as $300.

Born in Bangor, he was a son of the late James and Anna Bonney Traves.

Mr. Traves was a member of Mackey Memorial Baptist Church, Masonic Lodge 565, F&AM, and the Sons and Daughters of Liberty, all of Bangor.

He had been employed as a dresser in the old Bangor Quarry, and by Flory Manufacturing Co., Bangor, and Bangor Mills.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, Raymond A. Traves, Bangor; three daughters, Mrs. Viola Wolbach, Mrs. Velma Bonney, and Mrs. Alice Haring, all of Bangor; six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in Mackey Memorial Baptist Church with the Rev. Robert Wilkins officiating.

Burial will be in St. John's Cemetery, Bangor.

There will be no visitation. Miller Funeral Home, Bangor, is in charge of arrangements.

Death of President Kennedy remained secret to all except few

CHAPTER THREE
12:30 P.M.: President Kennedy's death remained a secret to all except a select few, such as Jerry Behn, Secret Service man in the White House 1,500 miles away. It was not known to Lyndon Johnson, 35 feet away.

A few minutes before, Kenneth O'Donnell had peered inside the cubicle in which Lyndon Johnson and Mrs. Johnson stayed on orders of the Secret Service, and said: "It looks bad. Perhaps fatal. I'll keep you informed." O'Donnell about to sit, and held a hand against her mouth. This was the first time Lyndon Baines Johnson had been so addressed, the first time he knew that he was the 36th president of the United States.

"Mr. President," Kilduff began again. "I have to announce the death of President Kennedy to the press. Is it all right with you?" Johnson, hopped off the cart and jiggled a hand in his trouser pocket. "No, Mac," he said. "I think we had better get out of here and get back to the plane before

Secret Service men began to form in front of the casket and down the sides. The ultimatum had been rejected. William Greer, with the bags containing the President's clothing, walking through the cop and medical examiner. Dr. Rose stood his ground. So did the policeman. It seemed as though they would be run over by a casket.

Kellerman ran back and beckoned David Powers to bring Mrs. Kennedy out. She saw the casket ahead, watched it break bluntly through the blockers, and trotted along.

Kenny O'Donnell was not certain that they were going to be able to steal the body of the President, and urged Vernon Oneal to hurry. The mortician asked if they were going to the mortuary. Secret Service men said yes! yes! At the emergency overhang Roy Kellerman ordered Agent Andy Berger to take the wheel of the ambulance. Oneal wanted to know why he was not going to drive his hearse, and was told to stand aside. Mrs. Kennedy insisted on being in the back "beside my husband." Doctor Burkley helped her in. Clint Hill joined them and secured the door.

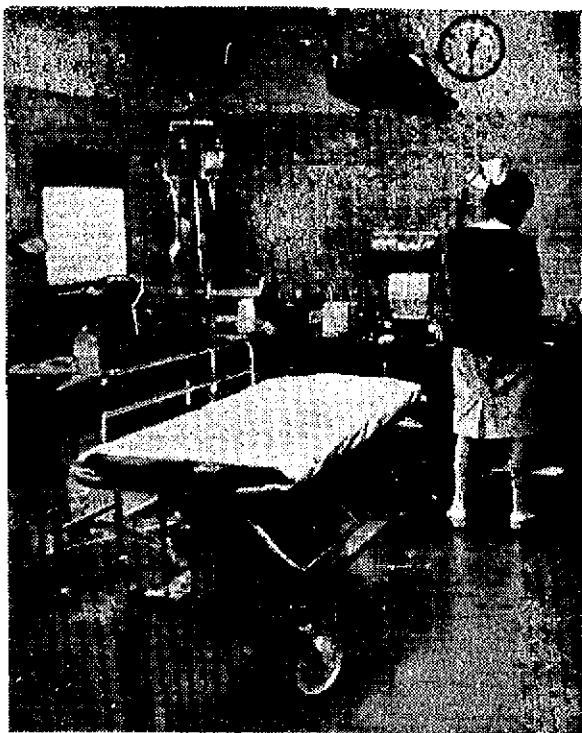

Roy Kellerman ran to tell O'Donnell and O'Brien to take the next car and, privately, head for Love Field. He got on the radio to tell agents at Love Field to let an ambulance and one following car through the fence, then lock up the place. Colonel Swindal was to be ready to take off at once.

Then President Johnson received a phone call from Assistant Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach with the wording of the oath of office to be typed by a secretary. The President happened to look at the TV and hear an announcement that the Dallas Police Department had just arrested the suspected assassin.

Johnson thought of Federal Judge Sarah Hughes, a Kennedy appointee, got her on the phone, explained the situation, and offered to send Secret Service agents for her. The judge declined the escort, and promised to be there in ten minutes.

An ambulance with red blinker entered the airport, followed by two cars, all at high speed. A third car was stopped short of the fence by court development in the township.

"Throw it out," Altomese said. "I won't sign it. They (Sun Valley) took 10 feet off the old Effort Mountain Road. That left 40 feet. There's a 50 foot right-of-way there."

enraged. He shouted: "We are removing it!"

Rose shook his head negatively. "This happened in Dallas County," he said. "Under the law, an autopsy must be performed." The shouting multiplied, with Kenny O'Donnell and Larry O'Brien joining in.

Rose went to telephone, and soon produced a judge. Theron

Ward, Roy Kellerman appealed meekly. "Your honor, we're asking for a waiver here because," Judge Ward said sadly, "I can't help you out."

"I can't help you out," "You can't break the chain of evidence," Dr. Rose repeated with finality. "The autopsy will be performed here." "All right," said Kellerman. Out of the side of his eye, he had seen the door of Trauma One open, the casket being pushed into the corridor.

The medical examiner saw it. Jumped ahead of it, standing in the way, shouting, "We can't release it! A violent death requires a post-mortem!" A policeman wearing a helmet and a revolver now stood with Rose and Judge Ward. The policeman said, "These people say you can't go."

All the Kennedy people were taking places on the aircraft they had arrived on. Larry O'Brien looked up to see the President and Mrs. Johnson coming down the aisle from the private stateroom. He was flabbergasted. When the Johnsons moved over to the breakfast nook, Mrs. Kennedy looked up and emerged from her reverie. There can be no doubt that she was surprised to see them aboard this aircraft, not number two. It is understandable if she felt resentful, because the trip home to Washington would normally be a "wake," a private mourning.

But she took Mrs. Johnson's hand in hers. "Oh, Lady Bird," she said. "It's good that we've always liked you two so much."

Mrs. Johnson began to weep again. "Oh, Mrs. Kennedy," she said. "You know we never even wanted to be vice president and now, dear God, it's come to this."

Johnson sent Youngblood for Kilduff. "Do we have to have the press in here?" he said. Kilduff had a press pool aboard: Merriman Smith and Charles Roberts. "Yes, Mr. President. Also Captain Stoughton should make pictures."

The president summoned O'Donnell and O'Brien. "I talked to Bobby and Katzenbach," Johnson said. "They think I should be sworn in right here. Judge Hughes should be here any minute." They watched Cecil Stoughton fixing up his cameras in the stateroom. "I would like you fellows to stay, to stand shoulder to shoulder with me," Johnson said. The Kennedy assistants did not commit themselves.

When Judge Sarah Hughes was taken into Air Force One, the President grasped her hand and said, "Thank you for coming, Judge. We'll be ready in a minute." He told Larry O'Brien someone should ask Mrs. Kennedy if she would stand beside him during the ceremony. The President said he would also need a Bible.

Mrs. Kennedy was inside a lavatory, alone. Whether she knew what was expected of her and was trying to avoid it, or whether the depression of spirit led to nausea, is uncertain. O'Brien asked Evelyn Lincoln, Mr. Kennedy's personal secretary, to see if she could get Mrs. Kennedy's attention. Looking around, O'Brien found a box with what he thought was a Bible. It was a missal — the prayers of the Roman Catholic Mass in both Latin and English. It was handed to the judge with the typed words of the oath.

Mrs. Kennedy stepped timidly into the room. The President grasped both her hands in his and whispered, "Thank you." He nodded for the ceremony to start. Mrs. Johnson was on one side of the President; Mrs. Kennedy, still in bloody gloves and garments, on the other, as he took the oath.

Some pushed forward to give a hearty handshake. President Johnson turned a stern expression on them; the bud of conviviality was crushed. Chief of Police Curry took Judge Sarah Hughes by the arm to leave with her. "God bless you, little lady," he said to Mrs. Kennedy, "but you ought to go back and lie down." Mrs. Kennedy summoned a smile. "No thanks," she said. "I'm fine."

The President said: "Let's get airborne."

went back to Agent Clint Hill. "Order a casket," he whispered. "Find some place nearby." Steve Landrigan of the hospital staff gave Hill the name of a nearby undertaker. Vernon Oneal was telephoned: "This is the Secret Service calling from Parkland Hospital. Put the best casket you have in a coach and get here quickly. Oneal started to say he had a bronze casket for $3,900, but he was talking to a dead phone."

Outside Trauma One, O'Donnell, the Secret Service, and Mrs. Kennedy conferred. Malcolm Kilduff was assigned to announce the death, and asked what was the exact time. Mrs. Kennedy wanted this to come after the priest had given her husband conditional absolution. Dr. Malcolm Perry was telephoned and asked if 1 p.m. would be all right. Yes, the death certificate would so state. An agent ordered the hospital administrator: "Don't let anybody know what time the President died. Security."

Word went from Jerry Behn's office at the White House to Secret Service Headquarters to Robert F. Kennedy before another phone rang and J. Edgar Hoover informed the attorney General that the president was "in critical condition."

Robert Kennedy said: "You may be interested to know that my brother is dead." Then he called his brother Ted and asked him to break the news to "mother and our sisters." It could not be told to the father: Joseph P. Kennedy was convalescing from an extensive cerebral hemorrhage.

When Malcolm Kilduff was BROADHEADSVILLE — The chairman of the Chestnut Hill Township Planning and Zoning Committee Tuesday vigorously supported the township supervisor's proposed subdivision control regulations requiring township lot sizes to be set at a minimum of one acre.

The ordinance will be proposed and, according to supervisor chairman Floyd Altomese, passed at the supervisor's meeting Monday.

Planning chairman Dr. John Martucci said the regulations are vitally important to maintaining the rural aspect of the West End and placing a limit in township growth and home building.

"The land developers don't take into consideration our already taxed and strained hospital conditions, the shortage of doctors in the county, the present overcrowding of area schools," Dr. Martucci said.

Floyd Altomese who also attended the planning meeting in the Pleasant Valley High School library told Dr. Martucci that there were already seven developers in the township and another developer coming in.

Supervisor secretary Gladys

you announce it. We don't know whether this is a worldwide conspiracy," Johnson said, quoting Emory Roberts and Clinton Hill. "whether they are after me as they were after President Kennedy."

Display of shock
Showing shock, Kilduff thanked the President and went back to discuss the matter with Roy Kellerman. Kellerman said he would feel better if they flew Johnson at once to the White House, where he could be given the utmost protection. Air Force One was a sealed edifice with wings. It had brand-new highly sophisticated communications equipment, some of which was directly related to the Bagman and his nuclear-kickoff "football." Air Force Two, on which the Vice President had arrived, did not have this equipment.

The president asked Kenny O'Donnell, "How about Mrs. Kennedy?" O'Donnell responded, "She will not leave the hospital without the president." Mrs. Johnson nodded approvingly when her husband said that he would not go back without Mrs. Kennedy and the body of her husband. O'Donnell excused himself and left. He wanted to get Mrs. Kennedy away from Trauma One before the casket arrived.

The Secret Service was to a man, unsentimental. They advised Johnson to get aboard Air Force One at once and to take off for Washington. Johnson was shocked. He asked where Mrs. Kennedy and the casket would go. "Air Force Two," they said.

If the oath of office had occurred to the new president, he did not mention it for the Altomese, citing the speed up in lot growth said that 300 lots in the township have been bought in the last three years.

Busy grand jury approves 16 bills

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Grand Jury Tuesday approved 16 bills and dismissed four.

Of the 16 approved bill, 11 involved motor vehicle code violations.

Approved bills were found against Paul A. Hulsizer, Mount Pocono, charged with driving without a license, second and third offenses; Frank Holt, Pennsburg, Pa., and Wallace Singer, Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, both charged with driving while under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

Also, Robert L. Gray, Easton, and Jack E. Singer, 729 Main St., Stroudsburg, both charged with driving without a license.

Charged with driving while under suspension were Joseph W. Lloyd, Lake Ariel, R.D. 3; Thomas A. Mulea Jr., Scranton; Sunny Prouler, Tobyhanna Village, Tobyhanna; and Edward J. Yale, Wilkes Barre.

Approved bills were also found against William Depietro, Cherry Hill, N.J., charged with worthless checks; and Richard J. Smith, Monroe County Jail.

E. S. council agrees to budget

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Borough Council Tuesday night during an informal agenda meeting tentatively agreed to adopt the borough's budget for the coming year.

Sterling Cramer, borough manager, presented the proposed budget to council members for their decision.

Exact figures were not released but an informed source indicated that borough employees may be particularly happy with the new budget.

The source said that the East Stroudsburg Police Department would be especially happy because of the increased allotment.

also charged with worthless checks; and Richard A. Pyatt, 18 Sterling Rd., Mount Pocono, charged with failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

Also William C. Price, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and Raymond Bulz Jr., Henryville, both charged with fornication and bastardy; and Joseph A. Padula, Stroudsburg R.D. 2, charged with unlawful possession of a machine gun.

Charges of fornication and bastardy against Dirk J. Vanderbent, Stroudsburg, R.D. 2, and John Pedersen, 814 Main St., Stroudsburg, were dismissed.

Also dismissed were the charge of pointing a deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon against Harry R. Kossar, Shenandoah, Pa., and charges of assault and battery against Joseph Fisher and Joseph Pescina, both of Pocono Lake.

Catholic Light editor speaks at service today

SWIFTWATER — Rev. F. Allan Conlan, editor of The Catholic Light, will be the featured speaker at an Ecumenical Community Thanksgiving Service today at Pocono Mountain High School.

The service is scheduled for 8 p.m. and will mark the appearance of a 100-voice Ecumenical choir.

This service will be held under the auspices of the Central Pocono Ecumenical Conference, composed of more than 30 Protestant and Catholic churches in the area.

Father Conlan, who is 39, attended Seton Hall College, graduated from St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, and from the North American College, in Rome.

Father Conlan has served churches in West Wyoming, Dunmore, Scranton, Elkhart and has been chaplain of St.

Gladys Altomese complained about the lack of central sewage at Sun Valley. "There's a septic tank in every trailer and they don't have approval from the board of health," she said.

The planners agreed to oppose the approval of the Sun Valley development plan.

"Two lots per acre, $1,000 per lot, that's all they care about," Floyd Altomese said when the Blueberry Heights plan came up for discussion by the planners.

Gladys Altomese said Blueberry Heights started development in 1967 and put in wells and septic tanks, prior to the state sewage act.

New plans for court

STROUDSBURG — President Judge Arlington W. Williams of the 43rd Judicial District Monday filed an order of court changing the four terms of court in Monroe and Pike counties which comprise his district.

Effective Jan. 1, the court terms of Monroe County will be held in January, April, June and October.

Monroe County's terms had formerly been held in February, May, September and December. The new terms in Pike County will be held in March, May, September and November.

Hospital needs more employees

EAST STROUDSBURG — A critical need of employees in most professional categories dominated discussion during Monday night's meeting of the General Hospital of Monroe County Board of Directors.

The board voted to liberalize the policy on sick leaves and vacations and also grant a general pay increase effective January 6. The plans were approved following a recommendation by E. Holt Wyckoff, chairman of the personnel committee.

An increase of $2.50 per day in semi-private room rates was approved to finance the increased cost of operation. Approval for the increase followed the recommendation by Raymond Serfass, chairman of Finance Committee.

A plan for replacement and purchase of new x-ray equipment was referred to committee. If adopted, the plan will include a new machine with image intensifier and television viewer added for more rapid and efficient interpretation of examinations. This plan would bring about an estimated expenditure of between $80,000 and $100,000.

Mental health
F. Linton Patterson III reported on the Joint Conference Committee meeting with the professional staff of the recently opened mental health unit. It was reported that new programs are being instituted on schedule.

The hospital plans an Open House program on Sunday, Jan. 26 for the Mental Health Unit and for the new fifth floor area. However, since there has been no open house since 1964, other areas of the hospital will be included in the January 26 program.

Mrs. Maxwell Cohen reported on the volunteer program, revealing that over 978 hours were given to the hospital during the month of October.

William Malleson, chairman of the Food and Kitchen Committee, has scheduled a meeting in December to discuss modernizing the hospital kitchen.

contesting will

STROUDSBURG — According to documents filed in the Monroe County Register and Recorder's office, the last will and testament of Montgomery F. Crowe, deceased, formerly of 219 Park Ave., Stroudsburg is being contested by his wife, Katherine Crowe.

Mrs. Crowe filed the papers contesting the will on June 21, 1967.

Crowe's estate was valued at $750,364, the majority of which were in holdings of stocks and bonds.

Crowe was the owner of an insurance agency in East Stroudsburg and served as a state senator.

In the will, Crowe bequeathed $10,000 to each of his two sisters, Janet M. Lloyd and Helen Green. The remainder of his estate was to be put into trust with the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Crowe was bequeathed the home at 219 Park Ave., plus an income of $400 per month for the remainder of her natural life.

The will further stated that in the event of Mrs. Crowe's death, all of the income of the trust was to be paid to his daughter, Jessie, in convenient installments for the rest of her life.

Upon the death of his daughter, the trust will go to any children which belong to Jessie.

If there are no children by Jessie, the will stated that one third of the trust was to go to Lafayette College, Easton, one third to Monroe County General Hospital and the remaining third to Hollins College, Hollins College, Va.

PCC alumni to meet

CRESKO — The Pocono Central Catholic student council, athletic department and Parent's Guild will celebrate the school's first Alumni Get-Together on Alumni Night Saturday at the school.

Alumni Night will include two scrimmage basketball games between the girls' and boys' alumni teams and the school team. After the games, refreshments will be served in the school cafeteria.

The Parent's Guild urges all friends and supporters of the school to attend the event.

Attorneys for the Crowe estate and Mrs. Crowe were unavailable for comment.

Stroudsburg service set for Thursday

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg community Thanksgiving Service will be held today at 7:30 P.M. in the United Methodist Church.

Rev. Marshall J. Riu Jr. of the Zion United Church of Christ will bring the Thanksgiving Meditation on "The George Who Does It".

Ministers of the other cooperating churches will have a part in the service.

The combined choirs of the Presbyterian, Christ Episcopal, United Church of Christ and United Methodist churches will sing under the direction of Mrs. Norman Treible.

Judge reduces bail on narcotic charge

STROUDSBURG — Dennis Lee Marks, 25, 220 Main St., Stroudsburg, who was arrested Monday and charged with possession and control of dangerous drugs, Tuesday filed a successful petition in the Monroe County Court to have his bail reduced.

Marks was arrested with John Francis O'Neil in their apartment by Stroudsburg State Police and Stroudsburg Borough Police when a raid was staged on the apartment early Monday night.

State police patrols set for Thanksgiving

STROUDSBURG — All available State Police in The Pocono Record coverage area will be on duty during the five-day Thanksgiving holiday period.

The assigning of all available police to patrol the highways of the state followed an order issued by Col. Frank McKetta, police commissioner.

Col. McKetta noted that motor vehicle fatalities investigated thus far this year

Bushkill, and John Schimmel, Ananiam.

The new members were installed by Clarence Ungst, District Director, who assured club members that the occasion was one of the few times that any one club has come up with so many new members at one time.

At the meeting, plans were announced concerning a pop organ concert which will be sponsored by the club for the benefit of the Youth Fund.

The concert will be held on Jan. 30 at the East Stroudsburg High School auditorium.

Plans were also discussed for the upcoming Christmas program for club members.

S-burg firemen douse car fire

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg firemen were called Tuesday at 2:40 p.m. to the corner of Seventh and Ann Streets to extinguish a car fire.

Firemen said little damage, other than to the engine compartment, was done to the car.

They were taken before Stroud Township Justice of the Peace Mrs. Ruth Miller who set bail at $5,000 each. The men were unable to post bond and were taken to Monroe County Jail where they spent the night.

Marks' petition was based on the grounds that the bail was excessive with the plea.

Judge Arlington W. Williams reduced the bail to $2,500 on request of Maxwell Cohen, Marks' attorney.

Following the petition hearing and ruling Marks posted bail.

by State Police showed a slight decrease from 1967.

In order to maintain this record, McKetta said, "preventive patrols will be concentrated in areas having a high percentage of accidents and violations."

McKetta also asked motorists to include adequate travel time in their holiday plans because "time and again, investigations into tragic accidents indicate the driver was 'in a hurry'."

Moment of thanks

Food and football are a magic part of Thanksgiving Day across the United States and our community is no exception.

It would be worthwhile for each of us to add a third "F" to Thanksgiving Day — Faith.

We would all be richer if we would only take a few minutes from our schedule of eating and enjoyment to recall the past year and note at least some of the items for which we should be thankful.

Thursday's schedule will undoubtedly be hectic, but it should serve as an opportune time in which to give thanks, as we have survived a hectic year.

Health, employment, success, good fortune and any number of things that have aided our life since we last celebrated Thanksgiving Day should be noted, at least silently, on Thursday.

Families who have had sons and relatives survive the ordeal of Vietnam, make good in college or find outstanding employment would do well to say a silent prayer on this holiday set aside each year for observations of this type.

The Pilgrims founded Thanksgiving Day in 1620, but never has the holiday had more meaning than at the present time. Never have we had more to be thankful for than at present.

There may be times when doubt governs our life, through thought and deed. But, the fact that we live in the United States, with our homes in the beautiful Pocono Mountains and surrounding area, is a factor that warrants a great deal of thanks.

Far from the scourge of war, the pangs of hunger and the fear of upheaval, we Americans have more reasons to offer thanks today than anytime in our history.

Let's each of us do it Thursday — even if only for a moment.

Records don't count

Football is as much a part of Thanksgiving in Monroe and Northampton counties as turkey, stuffing and stomach aches.

Although the brand of football at Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg hasn't been of the usual calibre in recent years, the interest in the battle for the "Little Brown Jug" hasn't lessened in intensity.

The reason for the high interest rates, despite the low victory total, stems simply from the fact that nothing that has happened previously during the campaign means a thing when the Mountaineers and Cavaliers lock horns on Thanksgiving Day.

low victory total, stems simply from the fact that nothing that has happened previously during the campaign means a thing when the Mountaineers and Cavaliers lock horns on Thanksgiving Day.

Stroudsburg has won only one game thus far this season, while East Stroudsburg is still searching for its initial favorable decision. But, the tempo of pre-game ticket sales would indicate that a pair of unbeaten rivals are about to lineup for the 10 a.m. kickoff Thursday.

Actually the supply of tickets is virtually near the "sellout stage."

The usual color will be present and all game festivities, before, during and after, will be as they have in the past when these two arch foes placed much brighter records on the line.

Even the calibre of football has a way of reaching its peak on Thanksgiving morning and games that are often expected to be unexciting turn into cliff-hangers.

The same is true in the Bangor-Pen Argyl clash. The entire season is wrapped into this one game and past performances don't count — not even a little bit.

These two games are community projects, and each of the communities involved is strongly behind its school — regardless of its record this season.

Keep the spirit high and sportsmanship on the same lofty plateau.

The Old Notre Dame fieldhouse bulges with young humanity he night before the game. The screams are loud and loud, the students once gave Joe O'Kubich a 21-minute ovation. They are noisy and full of vim.

But you could have heard a paper dollar drop in the collection plate when Pat O'Brien began talking. He was the evening's star. The response was most tremendous after Pat went into his bit about the Rock and the Gipper.

Later that evening, a down-checked Notre Dame freshman was escorting home a belle of St. Mary's, and she was overheard to say: "Pat O'Brien I know. He's marvelous. But who are his Rock and Gipper he keeps talking about?"

Seventh grader, "I resent your remark, and I'll give you 15 seconds to take it back." Eighth grader, "Oh yeah? Suppose I don't take it back in five seconds?" Seventh grader, "Well, how much time do you want?"

Czech refugee to read his letter while others slice their turkey

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

MOUNTAINHOME — A Czech refugee who came to the United States on Oct. 25 received his first letter from his wife Monday. He read the letter after a Barrett Lions dinner in Mountainhome.

For him that letter was like a fine after dinner cigar, it was his Thanksgiving away from home. Zbynek Capurka, an electronic engineer who works for Patterson-Kelley Co., East Stroudsburg, in the drafting department, smiled when his wife wrote that his grandmother was concerned about his health.

"Listen," he said to Lion member George Sopko whose two uncles came from Czechoslovakia, "my grandmother," he laughed. "She wants to send me something to eat!"

The smile vanished as he read on about his country's food prices. "People buy very much in shops but nothing much to buy," he said. "Prices bigger and bigger."

Friend escapes

And then the laugh again. "A friend of mine escaped to West Germany." And once more the laugh faded away for remembrances of things past, namely his eight-year-old son, Thomas. "My son is fine," he said folding and unfolding the letter.

Zbynek Capurka was one of 165 Czechoslovakian refugees who arrived in the United States on Oct. 25 aboard a plane chartered by the International Government Committee for European Migration. It was the largest single group brought to this country since the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

When the Russians invaded

All Thanksgiving Days are not spent watching your favorite football teams play. For Zbynek Capurka, a Czechoslovak refugee, it will be spent re-reading a letter from his wife, who along with his son are still in his native country. (Staff Photo by Grady)

Czechoslovakia — "Somebody's always invading our country," Capurka said — Capurka was in his home town, Brno in the middle of the country. "It was at night, and I was going down to the railroad station with my son. We were going to spend our vacation with my mother. But the railroad guard told me there were no trains. It was the Russians, all over again."

Capurka, a 33-year-old electronic engineer who worked for a typewriter factory in Brno, tried to talk his wife into coming with him to the United States. Capurka said his wife was afraid to leave. He never really explained what she years dream . . . ? To go to United States."

"Before I left Brno I took many long walks with my son around the city. Brno is a big city with about 140,000 people. We took many walks, my son and I, before I had to say goodbye. My son wanted to know when the next eclipse of the moon would be in Czechoslovakia? I told him 1949."

President Ludvig Svoboda of Czechoslovakia is Capurka's hero. He told the Russians what he would do if they murdered Prime Minister Cernik and Alexander Dubcek, First Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Central Communist Party, Capurka said. He told them if they killed his two friends, he would then and there, on the spot, kill himself.

Capurka said that in Russia it is the Communist party that controls the government and that in Czechoslovakia it is the government that controls the party.

"But Russia wants the party to head the government in Czechoslovakia," Capurka said. "And this is where the fear lies with our people. How much will our people resist? And how far will the Russians go?"

He likes America very much and wants to stay here. He likes his work and says all Americans he's met so far have been very very friendly.

Questions remain

But he still wonders why America let the Russians rape Hungary and why it didn't do anything when the Russians put up the Berlin Wall.

"There are two types of fear in my country," he said. "The one fear is to tell the Russians that we will resist them, come what may; and the other is to say to other Czechs that we can't resist the Russians. The first fear is a good fear and the second is a bad fear."

Whether Zbynek Capurka has turkey or hamburger for Thanksgiving won't matter too much to him. For him Thanksgiving is working in America and saving up the money so that in a couple of years perhaps he can send for his wife and son — if there's still a Czechoslovakia left by that time.

Chestnuthill wants building limited, supervisors to adopt subdivision rules

BROOKHEADSVILLE — The chairman of the Chestnuthill Township Planning and Zoning Committee Tuesday vigorously supported the township supervisor's proposed subdivision control regulations requiring township lot sizes to be set at a minimum of one acre.

The ordinance will be proposed and, according to supervisor chairman Floyd Altomose, passed at the supervisor's meeting Monday.

Planning chairman Dr. John Martucci said the regulations are vital to maintaining the rural aspect of the West End and placing a limit in township growth and home building.

"The land developers don't take into consideration our already taxed and strained hospital conditions, the shortage of doctors in the county, the present overcrowding of area schools," Dr. Martucci said.

Floyd Altomose who also attended the planning meeting in the Pleasant Valley High School library told Dr. Martucci that there were already seven developers in the township and another developer coming in.

Supervisor secretary Gladys

Altomose, citing the speed up in lot growth said that 300 lots in the township have been bought in the last three years.

Dr. Martucci said he received from the Monroe County Planners a sketch plan of the Sun Valley Lake Village trailer court development in the township.

"Throw it out," Altomose said. "I won't sign it. They (Sun Valley) took 14 feet off the old Effort Mountain Road. That left 40 feet. There's a 50 foot right-of-way there."

Gladys Altomose complained about the lack of central sewage at Sun Valley. "There's a septic tank in every trailer and they don't have approval from the board of health," she said.

The planners agreed to oppose the approval of the Sun Valley development plan.

"Two lots per acre, $1,000 per lot, that's all they care about," Floyd Altomose said when the Blueberry Heights plan came up for discussion by the planners.

Busy grand jury approves 16 bills

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Grand Jury Tuesday approved 16 bills and dismissed four.

Of the 16 approved bills, 11 involved motor vehicle code violations.

Approved bills were found against Paul A. Hulsizer, Mount Pocono, charged with driving without a license, second and third offenses; Frank Holt, Pennsburg, Pa., and Wallace Singer, Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, both charged with driving while under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

Also, Robert L. Gray, Easton, and Jack E. Singer, 720 Main St., Stroudsburg, both charged with driving without a license.

Charged with driving under suspension were Joseph W. Lloyd, Lake Ariel, R.D. 3; Thomas A. Mulea Jr., Scranton; Sunny Prouder, Tobyhanna Village, Tobyhanna; and Edward J. Yale, Wilkes Barre.

Approved bills were also found against William Depietro, Cherry Hill, N.J., charged with worthless checks; and Richard J. Smith, Monroe County Jail.

also charged with worthless checks; and Richard A. Pynn, 19 Sterling Rd., Mount Pocono, charged with failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

Also William C. Price, Stroudsburg, R.D. 5, and Raymond Bulz Jr., Henryville, both charged with fornication and bastardy; and Joseph A. Padula, Stroudsburg, R.D. 2, charged with unlawful possession of a machine gun.

Charges of fornication and bastardy against Dirk J. Vanderbent, Stroudsburg, R.D. 2, and John Pedersen, 814 Ann St., Stroudsburg, were dismissed.

Also dismissed were the charge of pointing a deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon against Harry R. Kossar, Shenandoah, Pa., and charges of assault and battery against Joseph Fisher and Joseph Pescina, both of Pocono Lake.

Gladys Altomose said Blueberry Heights started development in 1967 and put in wells and septic tanks, prior to the state sewage act.

Judge Davis' mother dies at age 92

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Jessie Davis, 92, 39 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, the mother of retired President Judge Fred W. Davis, died Tuesday night in the home of her son.

Mrs. Davis was born in England and was the widow of Earl Davis.

In addition to Judge Davis, she is survived by Mrs. Ann Light, Elizabethtown, Pa., one grandson, Fred D. Light, Middletown, Pa., two great grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. Wilmit Alfred and Mrs. Olive Pickering, both of South Gibson, Pa.

Mrs. Davis was a member of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church; the Crown Seekers Sunday School Class; the Monroe County Order of Eastern Star and the Monroe County Republican Women's Council.

She had lived in East Stroudsburg the last 30 years and before that lived in South Gibson.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Lanterman Funeral Home.

E. S. council agrees to budget

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Borough Council Tuesday night agreed to an informal agenda meeting tentatively agreed to adopt the borough's budget for the coming year.

Sterling Cramer, borough manager, presented the proposed budget to council members for their decision.

Exact figures were not released but an informed source indicated that borough employees may be particularly happy with the new budget.

The source said that the East Stroudsburg Police Department would be especially happy because of the increased allotment.

Catholic Light editor speaks at service today

SWIFTWATER — Rev. F. Allan Conlan, editor of The Catholic Light, will be the featured speaker at an Ecumenical Community Thanksgiving Service today at Pocono Mountain High School.

The service is scheduled for 8 p.m. and will mark the appearance of a 100-voice Ecumenical choir.

This service will be held under the auspices of the Central Pocono Ecumenical Conference, composed of more than 30 Protestant and Catholic churches in the area.

Father Conlan, who is 39, attended Seton Hall College, graduated from St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, and from the North American College, in Rome.

Father Conlan has served churches in West Wyoming, Dunmore, Scranton, Elkland and has been chaplain of St.

Rev. F. Allan Conlan
Mary's Villa Nursing Home, in Elmhurst.
He has also been a professor of philosophy at St. Pius X Seminary, in Dalton.

Hospital needs more employees

EAST STROUDSBURG — A critical need of employees in most professional categories dominated discussion during Monday night's meeting of the General Hospital of Monroe County Board of Directors.

The board voted to liberalize the policy on sick leaves and vacations and also grant a general pay increase effective January 6. The plans were approved following a recommendation by E. Holt Wyckoff, chairman of the personnel committee.

An increase of $2.50 per day in semi-private room rates was approved to finance the increased cost of operation. Approval for the increase followed the recommendation by Raymond Serfass, chairman of Finance Committee.

A plan for replacement and purchase of new x-ray equipment was referred to committee. If adopted, the plan would include a new machine with image intensifier and television viewer added for more rapid and efficient interpretation of examinations. This plan would bring about an estimated expenditure of between $80,000 and $100,000.

Mental health

F. Linton Patterson III reported on the Joint Conference Committee meeting with the professional staff of the recently opened mental health unit. It was reported that new programs are being instituted on schedule.

The hospital plans an Open House program on Sunday, Jan. 26 for the Mental Health Unit and for the new fifth floor area. However, since there has been no open house since 1961, other areas of the hospital will be included in the January 26 program.

Mrs. Maxwell Cohen reported on the volunteer program, revealing that over 978 hours were given to the hospital during the month of October.

William Malleson, chairman of the Food and Kitchen Committee, has scheduled a meeting in December to discuss modernizing the hospital kitchen.

Next holiday

Senator's widow contesting will

STROUDSBURG — According to documents filed in the Monroe County Register and Recorder's office, the last will and testament of Montgomery F. Crowe, deceased, formerly of 210 Park Ave., Stroudsburg is being contested by his wife, Katherine Crowe.

Mrs. Crowe filed the papers contesting the will on June 21, 1967.

Crowe's estate was valued at $750,381, the majority of which were in holdings of stocks and bonds.

Crowe was the owner of an insurance agency in East Stroudsburg and served as a state senator.

In the will, Crowe bequeathed $10,000 to each of his two sisters, Janet M. Lloyd and Helen Green. The remainder of his estate was to be put into trust with the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Crowe was bequeathed the home at 210 Park Ave., plus an income of $400 per month for the remainder of her natural life.

The will further stated that in the event of Mrs. Crowe's death, all of the income of the trust was to be paid to his daughter, Jessie, in convenient installments for the rest of her life.

Upon the death of his daughter, the trust will go to any children which belong to Jessie.

If there are no children by Jessie, the will stated that one third of the trust was to go to Lafayette College, Easton, one third to Monroe County General Hospital and the remaining third to Hollins College, Hollins, Va.

Attorneys for the Crowe estate and Mrs. Crowe were unavailable for comment.

The new members were installed by Clarence Ungst, District Director, who assured club members that the occasion was one of the few times that any one club has come up with so many new members at one time.

At the meeting, plans were announced concerning a pop organ concert which will be sponsored by the club for the benefit of the Youth Fund.

The concert will be held on Jan. 30 at the East Stroudsburg High School auditorium.

Plans were also discussed for the upcoming Christmas program for club members.

Stroudsburg service set for Thursday

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg community Thanksgiving Service will be held today at 7:30 P.M. in the United Methodist Church.

Rev. Marshall J. Riu Jr. of the Zion United Church of Christ will bring the Thanksgiving Meditation on "The George Who Does It".

Ministers of the other cooperating churches will have a part in the service.

The combined choirs of the Presbyterian, Christ Episcopal, United Church of Christ, and United Methodist churches will sing under the direction of Mrs. Norman Treible.

S-burg firemen douse car fire

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg firemen were called Tuesday at 2:40 p.m. to the corner of Seventh and Ann Streets to extinguish a car fire.

Firemen said little damage, other than to the engine compartment, was done to the car.

Judge reduces bail on narcotic charge

STROUDSBURG — Dennis Lee Marks, 25, 220 Main St., Stroudsburg, who was arrested Monday and charged with possession and control of dangerous drugs, Tuesday filed a successful petition in the Monroe County Court to have his bail reduced.

Marks was arrested with John Francis O'Neil in their apartment by Stroudsburg State Police and Stroudsburg Borough Police when a raid was staged on the apartment early Monday night.

They were taken before Stroud Township Justice of the Peace Mrs. Ruth Miller who set bail at $5,000 each. The men were unable to post bond and were taken to Monroe County Jail where they spent the night.

Marks' petition was based on the grounds that the bail was excessive with the plea.

Judge Arlington W. Williams reduced the bail to $2,500 on request of Maxwell Cohen, Marks' attorney.

Following the petition hearing and ruling Marks posted bail.

PCC alumni to meet

CRESCO — The Pocono Central Catholic student council, athletic department and Parent's Guild will celebrate the school's first Alumni Get-Together on Alumni Night Saturday at the school.

Alumni Night will include two scrimmage basketball games between the girls' and boys' alumni teams and the school team. After the games, refreshments will be served in the school cafeteria.

The Parent's Guild urges all friends and supporters of the school to attend the event.

State police patrols set for Thanksgiving

STROUDSBURG — All available State Police in The Pocono Record coverage area will be on duty during the five-day Thanksgiving holiday period.

The assigning of all available police to patrol the highways of the state followed an order issued by Col. Frank McKetta, police commissioner.

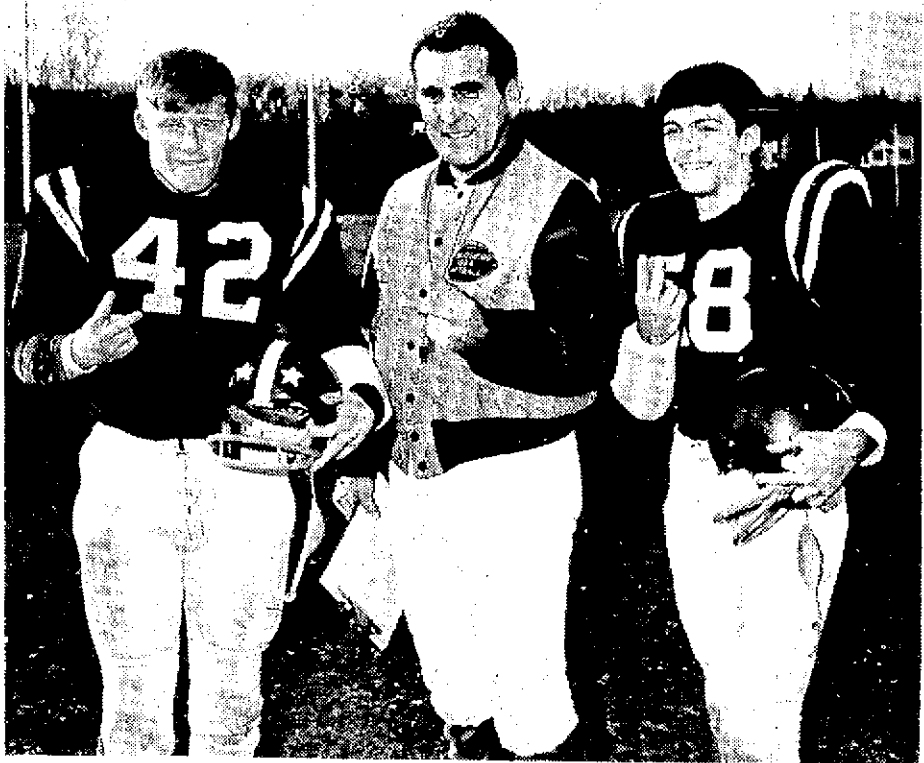

Col. McKetta noted that motor vehicle fatalities investigated thus far this year by State Police showed a slight decrease from 1967.

In order to maintain this record, McKetta said, "preventive patrols will be concentrated in areas having a high percentage of accidents and violations."

McKetta also asked motorists to include adequate travel time in their holiday plans because "time and again, investigations into tragic accidents indicate the driver was 'in a hurry'."

Mounts defense vs. Cav offense

EAST STROUDSBURG—For the second straight season the East Stroudsburg High football team finds itself in the position of needing a victory over Stroudsburg to avoid a winless season.

The 24th Inter-boro contest is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday in Memorial Stadium and for the second straight year the players may have a muddy track. The Mounties hold a 12-8-3 lead.

The game will be the final for Andy Silock as head coach of the Mounties. Silock, who earlier in the month announced his resignation effective at the end of the season, has a 3-1 record in the traditional game. Eastburg's Dick Merring is 1-0 thanks to last year's convincing 32-12 win in the mud at Stroudsburg.

For the second straight year there appears to be little to go on in establishing a favorite although the Mounties have one win to their credit, a 14-7 victory over Bangor.

force some last minute lineup changes.

Stroudsburg may be without the services of its top under, Wayne Jagers, who missed the Northampton game with a foot injury. Sophomore tackle Greg Smith suffered a back injury against the Kids and could be slowed.

For East Stroudsburg three regulars are hurting. Lew Caretta, who doubles as an offensive end and defensive tackle, is still hobbled with a knee injury, center Terry Snyder has a badly bruised arm and halfback Doug Schoonover has a pulled leg muscle.

Stroudsburg lineup

Silock, who announced that Strunk and Matt LaPenna have been elected game co-captains, plans to start juniors Bob Hopkins and Don Poorman at offense ends; Smith and Pete Hoffman at tackles; LaPenna and Alan Decker at guards, and Henry Lee at center.

Tom Keiper is expected to get the call at quarterback with Strunk, Mel Abel and Dave Shook as his running backs.

Defensively Steve Reese and Hopkins are the terminals; John Hay and Ron Loysen the tackles and Lee at middle guard. Strunk, LaPenna and Shook make up the linebacking corp with Ed Angle, Carl Nobis and Abel or Les Anthony in the secondary.

Few surprises

The tentative lineup announced by Merring had only one change. Sophomore Walt Gromadin is expected to replace another sophomore John Miller at a linebacking slot.

Thus on offense it will be Tom Polinski and Lew Caretta or Jim Hassler at ends; Perry Henley and Phil Brush at tackles; Mike VanWhy and Ron Hartman at guards and Snyder at center.

Joe Viechnicki will call the plays with Nick Ullio and Steve Miller at the halfbacks and Frailey at fullback.

Defensively Tom Polinski, Caretta, VanWhy, Hartman and Ullio make up the five-man line. Walt Gromadin, Jim Hines and Snyder are linebackers with George Miller, Joe Polinski and Jim Schoonover deep.

For the second straight year three trophies will be on the line. In addition to the "Little Brown Jug" which goes to the winning school trophies are also being awarded to the outstanding offensive and defensive player in the game.

In looking over the nine-game statistics of the two, the Mounties have a slight edge on defense but the Cavaliers have almost 700 yards more in total offense. Stroudsburg has scored 71 points and allowed 224 while Eastburg has put up 80 points on the board while giving up 299.

If there's one department on offense the Cavs (0-9) have a definite edge in passing. With sophomore Joe Viechnicki doing most of the throwing, Eastburg has picked up 67 yards in the air as compared to only 232 for the Mounties.

Eastburg has had 16 passes intercepted to date while the Mounties have only one interception to their credit.

In the running department, both teams have a pair of boys that "come from the same mold." Stroudsburg has relied on senior Ed Strunk to pick up the tough yardage while Eastburg calls on senior Jim Frailey for the short yardage.

Further talks for Wolman

BALTIMORE (UPI) Federal Bankruptcy Referee Joseph O. Kaiser Tuesday scheduled further hearings next Monday on Philadelphia Eagles owner Jerry Wolman's conditional plan to sell his stock in the National Football League team.

The bankruptcy referee indicated some dissatisfaction with the plan.

Earlier, unsecured creditors of Wolman recommended adopting an amended plan to place Wolman's major assets in a holding company and sell his stock in the company to pay off his $71.9 million in debts.

If the sale of the stock in "Trans-Sports Inc." can't meet Wolman's debts to secured creditors holding liens on the Eagles stock, the financially staggering sports and construction entrepreneur has offered to attempt to sell the Eagles stock.

If no buyer satisfactory to the creditors or to Wolman is found by March 31, the sale offer would be withdrawn.

Delaware, Indiana in Boardwalk

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Indiana University of Pennsylvania will meet the University of Delaware in the Boardwalk Bowl Dec. 14 at Atlantic City for the National Athletic Association Atlantic Coast College Division football championship, it was announced Tuesday.

Indiana has a 9-0 record and Delaware is 7-3.

Delaware is the 1968 Lambert Cup winner, symbol of Eastern football supremacy among schools of its caliber. Sophomore fullback Chuck Hall paces the team's ground attack with an average of 101.9 yards per game.

Indiana has piled up 360 points in nine games while holding the opposition to 82 points. It also has one of the strongest defenses against passing, having made 17 interceptions this year.

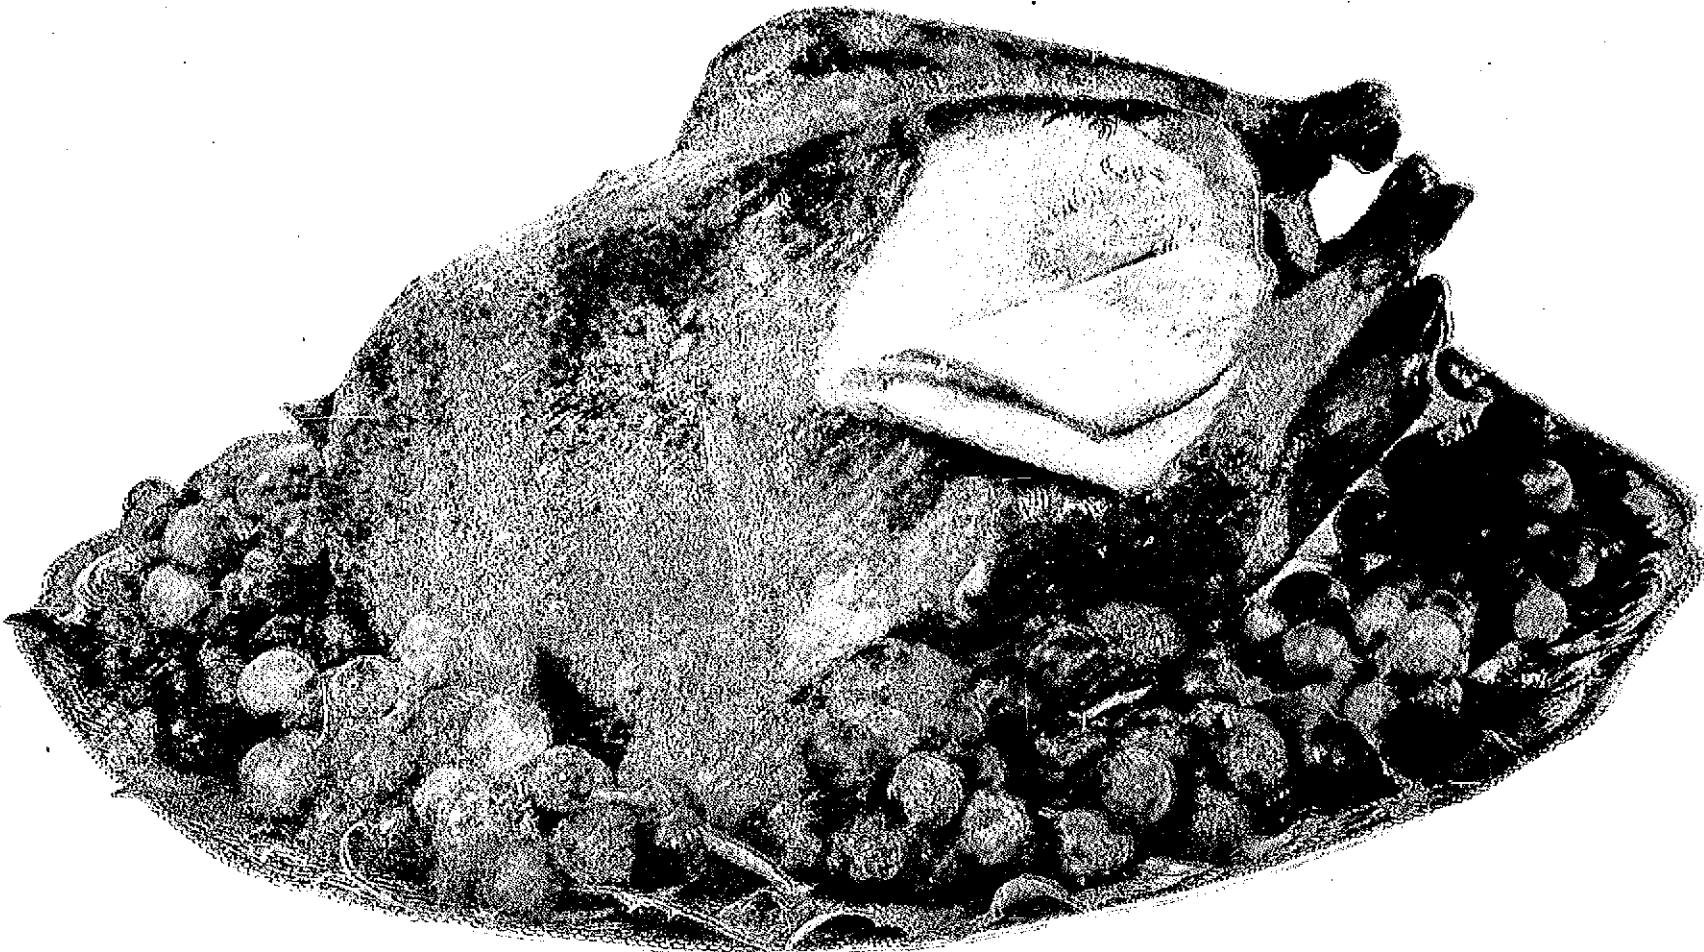

Buckhorns win second

HAWLEY — Wallenpaupack outscored Mountain View 14-6 in the final period Tuesday night to pull out a 52-50 decision, its second in as many games.

Pete Nell and Rich Anke each netted 17 points for the Buckhorns. Horton and Fangerer had 20 and 19 points in that order for the losers.

Mountain View salvaged the junior varsity game, 37-26.

The battle of turkey vs. pigskin: salvage time for the family dinner

STROUDSBURG — Since the Pilgrims on that first Thanksgiving shared their wild turkeys with the Indians in gratitude for their first harvest, the turkey has ruled the roost on Thanksgiving Day.

With the advent of local Turkey Day football games, now so long ago that they have assumed the proportions of tradition, the turkey's time to reign was shortened.

Today with the growing absorption with Thanksgiving Day televised games, he's getting even shorter shrift.

However for children, the Thanksgiving dinner is still what makes the holiday, and it's a wise family which still makes the family time around the table a festive one.

By now most families have done their Thanksgiving shopping, but there's still time for those extra touches that will make the meal a memorable one.

It's already memorable in one respect. In these days of rising prices and inflation it's a bargain. The average turkey dinner will only cost about six cents more than last year's. Using the same ingredients for a family of four, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has come up with the good news.

As for those fine touches, how about glazing the turkey with orange juice or a currant jelly mixture? Or adding pineapple and ginger to the sweet potato casserole.

Or if you're having squash instead of sweet potatoes, how about a tangy filling?

ORANGE GLAZE

1/2 cup orange juice
1/4 cup yellow mustard

Prepare the roast turkey according to your favorite method. To make glaze, combine orange juice and mustard, mixing thoroughly. During last hour of cooking, brush bird with glaze every 15 minutes. Use drippings for making gravy — the glaze gives it a delicious flavor.

Note: Refrigerate any remaining glaze and brush over turkey leftovers before warming them in the oven or combine 1 teaspoon glaze with 1 cup gravy and pour over warmed turkey slices.

GALA CURRANT GLAZE

1/2 cup brandy
1/2 cup currant jelly
1/4 cup yellow mustard

In a saucepan combine all ingredients. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly and continue cooking until jelly melts. Glaze turkey as described above.

SWEET POTATO CASSEROLE

4 medium sweet potatoes
1 can (8 1/2 oz.) crushed pineapple
1/2 cup melted butter
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon salt

Scrub sweet potatoes and cook covered in boiling, salted water 30 to 40 minutes, or until tender. Peel cooked potatoes and mash. Drain pineapple and reserve 1/4 cup syrup. Blend pineapple, 1/4 cup syrup, butter, ginger and salt with potatoes. Serve immediately or place in casserole and heat before serving in a 325-degree F. oven (about 10-15 minutes). Makes 6 servings.

HARVEST BAKED SQUASH

3 large acorn squash
1 cup water
1 can (13 1/2 oz.) pineapple tidbits
1 1/2 cups diced apple, unpeeled
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cut squash into halves; scoop out seeds. Place cut side down in a large glass baking dish. Add 1 cup water to bottom of dish. Bake in a moderate oven (50 degrees F.) minutes. Meanwhile combine drained pineapple tidbits, apples, celery and walnuts in a small bowl. Melt butter, blend in sugar, cinnamon and salt. Pour over pineapple mixture tossing lightly to combine. Remove squash from oven; drain off water and turn cut side up. Spoon pineapple mixture into squash; return to oven and bake 15 to 20 minutes longer until squash is tender. Makes 6 servings.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

If you're too young for football, and too old for naps, Thanksgiving might well be a day when the most you're thankful for is that it's over. Being pushed out of the kitchen by dinner preparations and shushed away from the television by football, there's nobody left to play with at all.

Over the river and through the woods to Grandmother's house we go! Is still a possibility — if Grandma has color television; but "Hurrah for the fun. Is the pudding done? Hurrah for Thanksgiving Day" has been changed.

Now it's "Hurrah for Houston. How much are the Eagles behind? Hurrah for Texas A & M" which doesn't even rhyme. And if the pudding isn't done by half-time, don't bother.

Of course Mothers have a gripe, too. If the results of her hours in the kitchen are consumed abstractedly while everybody watches the game she might just as well have settled for TV dinners all-around.

Oh well, other times, other customs, and the thankfulness comes in having everybody in one place, at one time, at least as physical presences.

And if you can't beat 'em join 'em, Grandma. Muscle in by the television and cheer for the underdog, and during half-time organize a paper chase in the back yard for the middle. And be thankful nobody's promoted Thanksgiving day gifts all-around yet.

BPW looks to 1977 and Tocks

STROUDSBURG — Taking a long look forward, to 1977 and the expected completion of the Tocks Island and the recreation area, the Business and Professional Woman's Club learned a lot more about the project and what they could do in the meantime.

Frank P. Dressler, executive director of THAC, the seven-county advisory council, was the speaker at their meeting held at the Beaver House. He was introduced by Mrs. Josephine Manchester, legislative committee chairman.

He sketched the basic projects of the dam for flood control, water supply, hydroelectric power and recreation. The recreation area, it is estimated, will attract 143,000 visitors a day.

It is expected to be in operation by 1977. It will take at least seven years for the building.

His talk was followed by questions from the committee. Miss Margaret Garwood, a student at Stroudsburg High School, who represented BPW at a recent youth conference held in Harrisburg reported on its value.

Members who are dressing dolls for distribution by the Salvation Army were urged to return them as soon as possible to Millicent Everitt, club president. This is an annual club project.

Money was donated by the club to Freedom Foundation, Valley Forge toward the construction of a flagpole and stone steps leading up to it.

An off-shoot of the Gulf Stream warms Norway's coast year-round, enabling most inlets to stay ice free, even though they are on the same latitude as Siberia and southern Greenland.

Just make sure the internal temperature of the stuffing reaches a temperature of 165 degrees as registered on a meat thermometer before serving.

To make it healthy

Fast and hot for stuffing

By MISS DAWNE SENSINGER

These questions and answers are prepared by Ruth J. Buck, Extension Foods and Nutrition Specialist at Penn State University. We hope they will help make your Thanksgiving feast a happy affair and reduce the incidences of sickness and death caused by food poisoning.

What is the popular turkey stuffing in Pennsylvania?

Often we receive requests from Pennsylvanians for stuffing recipes using chestnuts. Occasionally a request is for a stuffing recipe using oysters, sausage, or ground meat. When meat is one of the ingredients in stuffing, it is cooked before adding to the other ingredients.

Much of the news is the risk of food poisoning in stuffings improperly handled and incorrectly prepared. Is this why any meal is cooked before putting it in stuffing?

True. The cooking applies to giblets if they are a part of the stuffing. Speaking of the risk of food poisoning, stuffing provides an idea medium for growth of harmful bacteria. Yet, no person is exposed to this risk, if a few simple precautions are observed.

Aside from having stuffing in a temperature between fifty and one-hundred and twenty degrees Fahrenheit, what are the other lurking dangers?

You hit the bull's eye of danger. It is the temperatures between fifty and one-hundred and twenty degrees. The difficulty is using practices to reduce to a bare minimum the time exposure of stuffing in this temperature range.

How long do you think it takes a stuffed turkey to reach a safe temperature at the recommended oven roasting temperature of 325 degrees?

I have no idea, but the point you are making is that whatever the time, the temperature favors growth of food poisoning organisms.

This is why stuffing a turkey the night before cooking is vetoed. Think of the time needed to chill to 45 degrees the center of a stuffed turkey. Chances are the stuffing is warmer than room temperature when the bird is filled. Then to double the risk, the stuffing is moist.

This same principle applies to partially cooking the stuffed bird at one time then completing cooking at a later time.

Such a practice is risky in the cooking of any meat. Time in the danger zone is increased while the meat heats to temperature, again while it cools, then the cycle is repeated in the second cooking period.

What about cooking the stuffing separately, that is, cook the turkey unstuffed?

Research on the topic is pointing in this direction. The larger the bird the longer the time for the center of the stuffing to come to temperature. Cornell University is recomending that turkeys weighing eighteen pounds or over be roasted unstuffed. If there's dressing, it should be cooked in a pan. Generally, it takes five minutes per pound longer to cook a stuffed bird than to cook an unstuffed bird.

How does one know how much stuffing to put in a bird?

A reliable guide is the ready-to-cook weight. Allow about a cup of prepared stuffing per pound of ready-to-cook weight. Spoon the stuffing lightly into the cavity. Never pack stuffing. If extra dressing remains, cook it in a pan. About two-thirds cup of dressing is the customary serving.

Cooking stuffing to a temperature high enough to destroy harmful bacteria that might be present is bothering me. Is this possible?

Yes, if the internal temperature, as registered on a meat thermometer inserted in the center of the stuffing, has reached 150 degrees when the bird is removed from the oven. Then during the 20 to 30-minute period recommended before serving, the internal temperature will rise to 165 degrees. This temperature, researchers believe, is high enough to kill any harmful bacteria that might be present.

Just make sure the internal temperature of the stuffing reaches a temperature of 165 degrees as registered on a meat thermometer before serving.

Death of President Kennedy remained secret to all except few

CHAPTER THREE
12:30 P.M.: President Kennedy's death remained a secret to all except a select few, such as Jerry Behn, Secret Service man in the White House 1,500 miles away. It was not known to Lyndon Johnson, 35 feet away.

A few minutes before, Kenneth O'Donnell had peered into the cubicle in which Lyndon Johnson and Mrs. Johnson stayed on orders of the Secret Service, and said: "It looks bad. Perhaps fatal. I'll keep you informed." O'Donnell about to sit, and held a hand against her mouth. This was the first time Lyndon Baines Johnson had been so addressed, the first time he knew that he was the 36th president of the United States.

"Mr. President," Kilduff began again. "I have to announce the death of President Kennedy to the press. Is it all right with you?" Johnson hopped off the cart and fished a hand in his trouser pocket. "No, Mac," he said. "I think we had better get out of here and get back to the plane before

Secret Service men began to form in front of the casket and down the sides. The ultimatum had been rejected. William Greer, with the bags containing the President's clothing, walking through the cop and medical examiner. Dr. Rose stood his ground. So did the policeman. It seemed as though they would be run over by a casket.

Kellerman ran back and beckoned David Powers to bring Mrs. Kennedy out. She saw the casket ahead, watched it break bluntly through the blockers, and trotted along.

Kenny O'Donnell was not certain that they were going to be able to steal the body of the President, and urged Vernon Oneal to hurry. The mortician asked if they were going to the mortuary. Secret Service men said yes! At the emergency overhang Roy Kellerman ordered Agent Andy Berger to take the wheel of the ambulance. Oneal wanted to know why he was not going to drive his hearse, and was told to stand aside. Mrs. Kennedy insisted on being in the back "beside my husband." Doctor Burkley helped her in. Clint Hill joined them and secured the door.

Roy Kellerman ran to tell O'Donnell and O'Brien to take the next car and, privately, head for Love Field. He got on the radio to tell agents at Love Field to let an ambulance and one following car through the fence, then lock up the place. Colonel Swindal was to be ready to take off at once.

Then President Johnson received a phone call from Assistant Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach with the wording of the oath of office to be typed by a secretary. The President happened to look at the TV and hear an announcement that the Dallas Police Department had just arrested the suspected assassin.

Johnson thought of Federal Judge Sarah Hughes, a Kennedy appointee, got her on the phone, explained the situation, and offered to send Secret Service agents for her. The judge declined the escort, and promised to be there in ten minutes.

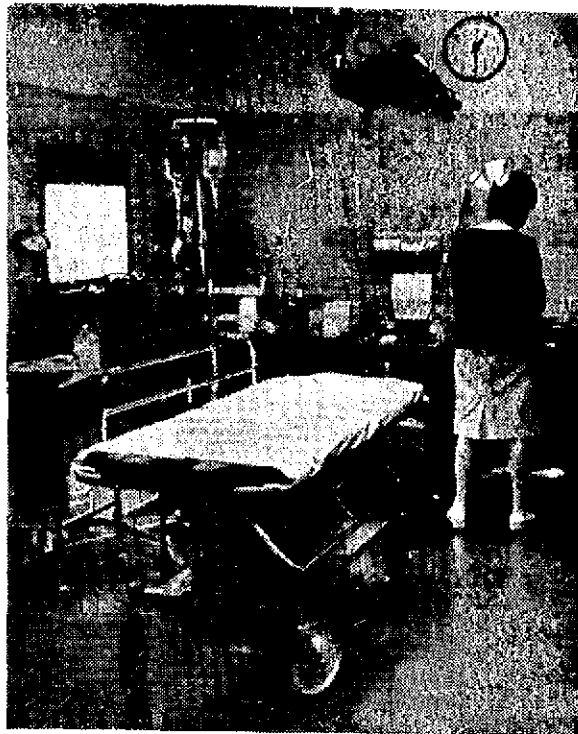

An ambulance with red blinker entered the airport, followed by two cars, all at high speed. A third car was stopped short of the fence by the lawmen. Vernon Oneal got out to protest. It was his ambulance. The President was in an O'Neal casket. The Secret Service men told him the ambulance would be returned. O'Neal was to send bills for $3,900 to the family and eventually receive a government agency check for $3,400. A rear door of Air Force One opened for Secret Service men to lift the casket inside.

The president left the television set to instruct stewards to hold the private bedroom for Mrs. Kennedy's use. However, Johnson quickly discovered there was no other place from which to telephone privately and he signaled the communications shack he would be using the bedroom phone. He wanted to ask the Attorney General for a legal opinion on when to take the oath of office as President.

When news of the death had been flashed, the press demanded details. They asked the Parkland Hospital doctors who had attended the President to be summoned. With four of the doctors facing them from the stage of the nurses' classroom, a hundred journalists with no time for tact fired questions. It was agreed that they would be answered by Dr. Kemp Clark and Dr. Malcolm Perry. Neither had experience in these matters; neither had turned the body of the President over to examine it for wounds; neither had autopsy experience.

The doctors were to complain bitterly that they were misquoted or quoted out of context. In truth, they were incompetent to discuss the wounds because they had no knowledge of the crime, the scene of it, the trajectory of projectiles, or whether wounds could be called entrance or exit. They could have drawn up a preliminary draft of treatment and given it to Dr. George Burkley, the President's physician. Burkley could not discuss the President's wounds with competence at the Bethesda autopsy.

Outside of Trauma One, Roy Kellerman waited with the death certificate. A stranger approached Kellerman, introduced himself as Dr. Earl Rose, and said, "There has been a homicide. We will take the body for an autopsy." At this moment, Dr. Burkley approached, and Kellerman told him, "Doctor, this man is from some health unit in town. He tells me we can't remove this body." Burkley was instantly enraged. He shouted: "We are removing it!"

Rose shook his head negatively. "This happened in Dallas County," he said. "Under the law, an autopsy must be performed." The shouting multiplied, with Kenny O'Donnell and Larry O'Brien joining in.

Rose went to telephone, and soon produced a judge. Theron

Ward, Roy Kellerman appealed meekly. "Your honor, we're asking for a waiver here because," Judge Ward said sadly, "I can't help you out."

"I can't help you out," "You can't break the chain of evidence," Dr. Rose repeated with finality. "The autopsy will be performed here." "All right," said Kellerman. Out of the side of his eye, he had seen the door of Trauma One open, the casket being pushed into the corridor.

The medical examiner saw it. Jumped ahead of it, standing in the way, shouting: "We can't release it! A violent death requires a post-mortem!" A policeman wearing a helmet and a revolver now stood with Rose and Judge Ward. The policeman said, "These people say you can't go."

All the Kennedy people were taking places on the aircraft they had arrived on. Larry O'Brien looked up to see the President and Mrs. Johnson coming down the aisle from the private stateroom. He was flabbergasted. When the Johnsons moved over to the breakfast nook, Mrs. Kennedy looked up and emerged from her reverie. There can be no doubt that she was surprised to see them aboard this aircraft, not number two. It is understandable if she felt resentful, because the trip home to Washington would normally be a "wake," a private mourning.

But she took Mrs. Johnson's hand in hers. "Oh, Lady Bird," she said. "It's good that we've always liked you two so much." Mrs. Johnson began to weep again. "Oh, Mrs. Kennedy," she said. "You know we never even wanted to be vice president and now, dear God, it's come to this."

Johnson sent Youngblood for Kilduff. "Do we have to have the press in here?" he said. Kilduff had a press pool aboard: Merriman Smith and Charles Roberts. "Yes, Mr. President. Also Captain Stoughton should make pictures."

The president summoned O'Donnell and O'Brien. "I talked to Bobby and Katzenbach," Johnson said. "They think I should be sworn in right here. Judge Hughes should be here any minute." They watched Cecil Stoughton fixing up his cameras in the stateroom. "I would like you fellows to stay, to stand shoulder to shoulder with me," Johnson said. The Kennedy assistants did not commit themselves.

When Judge Sarah Hughes was taken into Air Force One, the President grasped her hand and said, "Thank you for coming, Judge. We'll be ready in a minute." He told Larry O'Brien someone should ask Mrs. Kennedy if she would stand beside him during the ceremony. The President said he would also need a Bible.

Mrs. Kennedy was inside a lavatory, alone. Whether she knew what was expected of her and was trying to avoid it, or whether the depression of spirit led to nausea, is uncertain. O'Brien asked Evelyn Lincoln, Mr. Kennedy's personal secretary, to see if she could get Mrs. Kennedy's attention. Looking around, O'Brien found a box with what he thought was a Bible. It was a missal — the prayers of the Roman Catholic Mass in both Latin and English. It was handed to the judge with the typed words of the oath.

Mrs. Kennedy stepped timidly into the room. The President grasped both her hands in his and whispered, "Thank you." He nodded for the ceremony to start. Mrs. Johnson was on one side of the President; Mrs. Kennedy, still in bloody gloves and garments, on the other, as he took the oath.

Some pushed forward to give a hearty handshake. President Johnson turned a stern expression on them; the bud of conviviality was crushed. Chief of Police Curry took Judge Sarah Hughes by the arm to leave with her. "God bless you, little lady," he said to Mrs. Kennedy, "but you ought to go back and lie down." Mrs. Kennedy summoned a smile. "No thanks," she said. "I'm fine."

The President said: "Let's get airborne."

went back to Agent Clint Hill. "Order a casket," he whispered. "Find some place nearby." Steve Landrigan of the hospital staff gave Hill the name of a nearby undertaker. Vernon Oneal was telephoned: "This is the Secret Service calling from Parkland Hospital. Put the best casket you have in a coach and get here quickly. Oneal started to say he had a bronze casket for $3,900, but he was talking to a dead phone."

Outside Trauma One, O'Donnell, the Secret Service, and Mrs. Kennedy conferred. Malcolm Kilduff was assigned to announce the death, and asked what was the exact time. Mrs. Kennedy wanted this to come after the priest had given her husband conditional absolution. Dr. Malcolm Perry was telephoned and asked if 1 p.m. would be all right. Yes, the death certificate would so state. An agent ordered the hospital administrator: "Don't let anybody know what time the President died. Security."

Word went from Jerry Behn's office at the White House to Secret Service Headquarters to Robert P. Kennedy before another phone rang and J. Edgar Hoover informed the attorney General that the president was "in critical condition."

Robert Kennedy said: "You may be interested to know that my brother is dead." Then he called his brother Ted and asked him to break the news to "mother and our sisters." It could not be told to the father: Joseph P. Kennedy was convalescing from an extensive cerebral hemorrhage.

When Malcolm Kilduff was admitted to the bedside, Johnson was sitting on an ambulance cart, his legs dangling. Kilduff swallowed hard and said: "Mr. President." The tall Texan brought his head up sharply. Mrs. Johnson turned as she was you announce it. We don't know whether this is a worldwide conspiracy," Johnson said, quoting Emory Roberts and Clinton Hill, "whether they are after me as they were after President Kennedy."

Display of shock

Showing shock, Kilduff thanked the President and went back to discuss the matter with Roy Kellerman. Kellerman said he would feel better if they flew Johnson at once to the White House, where he could be given the utmost protection. Air Force One was a sealed edifice with wings. It had brand-new highly sophisticated communications equipment, some of which was directly related to the Bagman and his nuclear-kickoff "football." Air Force Two, on which the Vice President had arrived, did not have this equipment.

The president asked Kenny O'Donnell: "How about Mrs. Kennedy?" O'Donnell responded, "She will not leave the hospital without the president." Mrs. Johnson nodded approvingly when her husband said that he would not go back without Mrs. Kennedy and the body of her husband. O'Donnell excused himself and left. He wanted to get Mrs. Kennedy away from Trauma One before the casket arrived.

The Secret Service was to a man, unsentimental. They advised Johnson to get aboard Air Force One at once and to take off for Washington. Johnson was shocked. He asked where Mrs. Kennedy and the casket would go. "Air Force Two," they said.

If the oath of office had occurred to the new president, he did not mention it, for the same reason he would not depart alone on Air Force One — it would be like a precipitous power grab. The Constitution of the United States is explicit: "Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation."

Agent Lem Johns went out to requisition unmarked automobiles for the movement to Love Field, two miles away. The new President did not want to have his wife risk her life with him, so he ordered her to ride in another vehicle.

When the cars were ready the party went out at top walking speed. To keep up, Mrs. Johnson had to run between Secret Service agents who were fanning out ahead, with some walking backward. The President jumped into the back seat of the lead car, which had Chief of Police Jesse Curry as driver, and slouched as low as a big man can. Youngblood was beside him. Mrs. Johnson was shoved into the second car, another group into the third. Malcolm Kilduff hurried back to make arrangements for the death announcement. Cars of the curious were parked askew all over the hospital grounds, and the three automobiles followed each other over sidewalks, open fields, to Harry Hines Boulevard.

Vernon Oneal and two assistants rolled the four hundred-pound casket on a carriage down corridors to Trauma One. Mrs. Kennedy did not whimper. She studied the gleaming bronze sides, handles, and convex lid and didn't flinch.

With the brains of the President still oozing from the massive hole in his head, nurse Hutton had lifted the body by the neck, and wrapped sheets around it. A plastic mattress cover was placed in the casket, so that the edges hung over the sides. Then the nude body of the President, covered with other sheets, was lifted inside. The plastic folded over him and the lid was closed.

When Lyndon Johnson got aboard Air Force One, a television set was the first sound he heard inside. The President shh'd everyone, to hear anything new about the assassination. A commentator said Mr. Kennedy had been pronounced dead; the shots came apparently from a school book building; the police had clues to the assassin and were looking for a suspect; Vice President Johnson had left Parkland Hospital but no one knew his whereabouts.

Innocent social training

QUARANTINED: (Q.) I know parents want to protect their children, but all mine are doing is ruining my popularity. How can I convince them that I can handle myself at a chaperoned party? I want and need their trust.

I'm 13 and very popular and get invited to all the parties, but my parents won't let me go.

They say I'm too young and they don't want me getting pregnant.

If they think I would get pregnant at age 13 when 40 other people are there, they're nuts! They must think they didn't do a very hot job of bringing me up.

Party Pooper in Stamford, Conn.

(A.) All decent teen-agers want and need their parents' trust. I believe you can help yours turn their fear into trust. Ask them to read this column regularly. If they do they'll see that it's natural for 13-year-olds to attend chaperoned social events.

When boys and girls are exposed early to clean, chaperoned fun parties featuring games, dancing, boy-girl talk, and good food, they are more likely to be prepared for the more serious experiences that come later.

Your parents should see that in not allowing you to go through the innocent boy-girl social training period that usually starts at about 13, they are asking for real trouble in the future.

THE SHAKES: (Q.) I'm an A student, fairly popular, and a member of the Student Council. But my voice cracks up. When I read aloud in class my stomach turns weak, my head gets dizzy, and my voice and I start shaking. Can you help me?

W.D. of San Antonio, Texas.

(A.) Many fine speakers have had your trouble, so take heart. When you stand to speak or read, hold onto the podium, or your desk or chair. That will help the shaking.

Hungary pursues freedom policies

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungarian leaders, reluctant allies of Moscow in halting the Czechoslovak liberalization drive, seem determined to pursue their policies of relative freedom at home. Western observers agree that prospects are good that they will manage.

Fears have been widespread that the crisis might herald an end to the reform course which, 12 years after the bloody uprising, has given Hungary the most Western look in the Soviet orbit.

Newspapers and radios were showered with worried letters when Hungarian units joined troops of the four hard-line Warsaw Pact member countries in the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"They asked whether this will mean a shift in policy," a Communist editor said. "In a way this concern was a massive support and a proof that we have been on the right way."

Party leaders readily responded with assurances of party policies whose basic tenets include economic reform and democratization of public life.

On the contrary, said the party newspaper Nepszabadsag, the Czechoslovak crisis has confirmed the Hungarian party in its conviction that "there is no other policy than that which it has pursued so far."

That road, it emphasized, was in many aspects "quite different" from the Soviet and other Communist models "because only by being so was it able to approach the vital questions of our society with a truly Marxist attitude."

Hungarian Communists insist the party's course is as liberal as that of the Czechoslovak leadership. The economic reform is claimed to go beyond that of Prague in several points. How then does Hungary make the Soviet Union give its green light?

In a speech, Premier Jenoe Pock gave one answer:

"An important role in it success achieved so far by our economic reform is played by the knowledge that we do not live in a vacuum. We look care that international public opinion, primarily the Socialist community of which we are members, should understand more or less correctly what is happening in our country and, what is more, should possibly agree with it."

A lower Communist official privately explained another secret of Hungary's success:

Western diplomats here see no indication of a shift in Soviet policy toward Hungary. Some think party chief Janos Kadar can claim personal credit for continued success in the tactics of caution.

Kadar, say some sources, has managed to build a special relationship with Moscow and is one of the few to whom the Kremlin men are willing to listen.

"He had the confidence of Nikita Khrushchev and somehow he has managed to convince his successors, too, of his complete loyalty," one analyst said. "That has given him lots of room to move."

Suicides' choice

PARIS (AP) — Two French physicians, Drs. J. Vedrine and J.M. Ruette of Lyon, studied 125 suicide cases and found that firearms in this country of gun controls are far down the list of preferred means for self-destruction. They listed the favorite ways in order as: hanging, gas, drowning, dry dives from high places, guns, poison.

Reeders Day Care Training Center aids retarded

Fine Arts data now available

CAMP HILL — Scholarship information for applying to the Fine Arts Program for Pennsylvania's Artistically Gifted High School Students is now available for students in the East Stroudsburg School district. It was announced by Cummings A. Pratt, vice president.

The Fine Arts Program, financed by federal funds under Title III, provides scholarships in art, dance, music, photographic arts (still and motion pictures) and theater to students who have outstanding artistic ability to perceive, to perform, or to create in the arts.

One hundred fifty scholarships to attend the five-week session at a Fine Arts Center on a college campus during the summer of 1969 will be awarded to students currently in grades ten and eleven who attend any public or non-public school in the state and whose parents are residents of Pennsylvania.

DeWitt Zuse, Director of the Fine Arts Program, said students will be individually guided by an outstanding faculty of high school and college teachers and professional artists selected from the Commonwealth and the nation.

Each student will also have time to develop his own ideas in the arts, participate in learning experiences designed to encourage growth and understanding in his major art field, explore new interest in the other arts, and will have an opportunity to talk about ideas that relate the arts in a learning-living environment.

Jan. 15, 1969 is the deadline for returning completed applications to the Fine Arts Program, 2929 Gettysburg Road, Camp Hill, Pa. 17011.

social handicaps but they do not need less education because they are retarded; they need more and better education geared more to their individual capabilities than the average. In both academic and social skills and the earlier the education or training begins, the greater the chances for success.

Under the Monroe County school system, a comprehensive special education program has been attending to such needs by providing services for all types of exceptional children.

Just one of these programs is the Reeders Day Care Training Center for trainable retarded students, starting at the primary level, sixth grade, and all ages through 21.

Its purpose is to teach the very simple processes of formal education and training projects in preparation for a daily occupation, such as a position in the Rumley Workshop in East Stroudsburg.

To attain this level of acceptance and ability, the Center's staff, supported by the county school board, continues from day to day in its impressive task to give meaning to the lives of these children — to make them aware of themselves and the so-called "outside" world.

There are three teachers — Mrs. Camille Harvey of East Stroudsburg, who started as an aide when it was still a private, part-time program of five local parents in 1952; Mrs. Harvey teaches age group 14-21.

Miss Harriet Sebring, of East Stroudsburg, the first teacher hired by the group of parents in 1953 working with five pupils in the first headquarters at East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church. Miss Sebring teaches age group 9-14.

Mrs. Mary Conley of Mountainhome who works with the primary age group of seven pupils, now in her fourth year with the center and Mrs. Hilda R. Owens, of Stroudsburg R.D. 1 who assists in all classes and projects with the three basic groups.

It is a definitive, specialized and individualized course of training and education and as Mrs. Harvey points out, "It is not a play school."

A considerable amount of time and effort goes into the five days of classes from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and it's all meant for the 30 boys and girls from all over the county.

They are given guidance in community living, formal lessons, adjusting to their environment, learning self-confidence, coordinating their mind and muscles, improving their speech and emotional stability.

Mrs. Harvey said, "at all times we try to instill the desire in the child to do something, prepare and give them final grooming for jobs."

Miss Sebring explained that at all times a normal attitude and atmosphere must be maintained. It is surprising at the response from children when they are given the chance to show themselves. Though most are only trainable, some will develop to be educable and are given more opportunities to continue to learn.

After 15 years, the program has expanded in subject matter and it is one of the state's original day care centers which many areas still lack.

For the primary pupils, subjects comparable to any elementary school are given and interests encouraged.

For the secondary, a sample schedule would include special instruction in the morning, such as recognition of own name, vocabulary, handwriting, readiness, learning to follow instructions, alphabet and number work, recognition of every day words, colors and just talking about daily situations, weather, seasons, holidays, etc.

Throughout the day, added subjects are given in health, science and safety, reading, good manners, simple arithmetic, telling time, learning birthdates, names, etc.

And there are special projects and events. Every Tuesday, the three classes combine for a film strips session; an arts and crafts hour; Thursdays, special morning exercises with occasional guest speakers from the community and Friday, speech instruction with speech therapist Mrs. Marcia Bloss.

And always there is time for parties and games. Combined birthday parties are held each month; celebration of holidays, both educational and fun games. Miss Sebring recalls the early efforts to establish the care center since 1952, as the state took over in 1953 and since 1956, under Dr. John Abbruzzese, when it became the county-wide supported training center.

Before its established home in the Jackson Township school building eight years ago, the center left its foundational marks with the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, American Legion, two years in the Stroudsburg YMCA, and the National Guard Armory.

170-foot crane sinks in ocean

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A 170-foot crane-rigged work boat sank mysteriously by the stern Monday while helping move a huge oil drilling platform. Sixteen of the 25 men aboard were rescued from the wind-swept seas.

Six of the nine missing men were feared trapped in their bunks when the $875,000 vessel went down with less than three minutes warning.

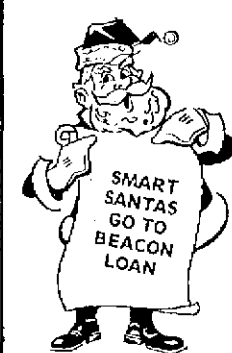

Two empty life rafts and a life jacket were found hours later by aircraft and rescue vessels searching the scene, eight miles offshore.

Soviet sends economic aid, arms to Nigeria in quest for influence

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Backing up its military aid with offers of postwar economic help, the Soviet Union is bidding to become a major influence in Nigerian affairs.

The prize is alluring. Nigeria, with more than 50 million people, is by far Africa's most populous land. Extricated from a draining civil war, it could produce a buoyant economy floating on crude oil.

Nigeria's ports provide a haven for Soviet vessels forced to reach the Far East around Africa because the Suez Canal is closed. It could be the West African base of operations the Soviet Union lost when its fortunes fell with President Kwame Nkrumah in the Ghanaian coup of February 1966.

Last week Nigerian officials throughout much of the federation were providing elaborate welcomes for 12 touring members of a Russian economic delegation.

The delegation's stated object is strengthening Soviet-Nigerian economic relations, examining ways to help Nigeria rebuild after its war with Biafran secessionists, an exhausting fight now in its 17th month.

The war is an insistent reminder of Soviet aid. A week before the delegation arrived, young Nigerians in old, Soviet-built MIG 17 jet fighters made their first night attack on Biafra's lifeline landing strip between Ufi and Ibadan. The Nigerians hailed the occasion as a great victory against the Biafran arms airlift; the Soviets basked.

"Behind our attitude toward the Soviet Union is a feeling of appreciation for this willingness to do what others have not done," said Dr. Olofin Arikpo, Nigeria's commissioner for external affairs.

His reference was oblique but obvious. The Americans have refused arms aid to Nigeria, settling instead for $15 million for civilian relief work. The British obliged only after the Russians produced 16 MIGs for Nigeria in July 1967.

The Soviet Union, a country whose propaganda once was barred by law from Nigeria, has come a long way in a short time.

Besides planes and vehicles the Russians have provided bombs and more than 200 technicians. Credit to buy more war materials was supposedly a subject of discussion with the economic delegation. Nigeria's foreign currency reserves are virtually depleted.

Since 1965 the Soviets have had a standing loan offer of about $56 million for a steel mill.

Relations between the Russians and the Nigerians reflect some wariness, but business between Nigeria and Russia is up.

Occasional quarrel said good

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—True or false, should married couples fight? Maybe, "argue" would be a better word—but does it help a marriage?

A Lewistown physician thinks it's a very good idea. Nothing deliberate, now, but it could keep love from going on the rocks.

"A good fight now and then clears the air, acts as a safety valve and serves as an outlet for bottled up irritations," suggests Dr. Milton H. Cohen. He's no psychiatrist, but just a general practitioner.

Dr. Cohen offered his advice at a recent conference for G. P.'s arranged by Temple University's School of Medicine. He made it clear, however, that quarrels—to be effective—must concern current issues.

"Raking up old coals only tends to bring the fight out of control and has repercussions," warned Dr. Cohen, still insisting that a hot quarrel can keep the love lights burning later.

"If we are not available to our families to express our gripes, they most surely will find other outlets, outside the family circle where they don't belong," he said. What's more?

"Talking relieves tensions, unburdens the mind and enables husbands, wives and children to share each other's feelings. It prevents loneliness and a feeling of isolation and it is a sound basis for building a happy family."

Soviet trips in use of its power

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
A few days ago a Soviet court affirmed the sentence to exile or labor camp of five intellectuals who disagreed with the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The case underscored how Soviet policy often seems to trip over its own feet in domestic, foreign and international affairs and in the use of the nation's enormous power. If policy aims are what they seem to be, Moscow often appears to defeat its own purpose.

Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov, who called himself Lenin, established Bolshevik power 51 years ago. He promised all manner of freedoms, self-determination for minorities, the "withering away of the state." Since then Russia has come far in terms of state power, armed might, massive industry, scientific achievements. In terms of Lenin's promises, it has been retrogressive. What was autocracy under the tsar is today's "partyocracy," or total domination by a relatively small group.

Does the Kremlin seek to maintain the picture of Western "imperialism" as the greatest threat to world peace?

The Soviet Union often looks like the imperial Russia whence it sprung. For the restless expansion of tsarist Russia which enveloped one-sixth of the earth's surface, there is today's imperialism of "socialism." For tsarist sway over subjugated states, there is today's sway over Communist European states.

Does Kremlin policy seek a lessening of tensions, a detente, to permit more attention to the crisis of international communism and to internal Soviet problems?

The recent declaration of the Brezhnev doctrine—claiming the right of intervention where Moscow feels "socialism" threatened—is a severe setback to any hopes of detente.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander I. Romanov, a professional foreign service officer, is a convivial sort who plays tennis in the old colonial atmosphere of the predominantly British Ikoyi Club. He once entered a circle of Western diplomats at a cocktail party with a lighthearted question, "Is this for NATO members only?"

Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, is expected to start a Lagos-Moscow route. From its experience with a Moscow-Accra run, the weekly plane is more likely to produce prestige than profit. However, 75 students on Russian Soviet Union to begin studies in August. They joined about 700 other Nigerians at school there.

Not all improve with Russian education. Officials at Lagos University Teaching Hospital said only one was qualified out of six medical students returning from Russia to do their internship.

In general, ideology appears to play a small role in Soviet-Nigerian relations. Russians tend to be agnostic at African ideas of socialism. Half the Nigerians profess Islam and most yearn for a chance to be capitalists. They are suspicious of communism.

The Soviet Union's main rivals for influence in Nigeria, the British and the Americans, voice unconcern over the Russian intrusion. "I think it might be a good idea if the Russians spent a little of their money here," said an American diplomat.

But the Soviet activity embarrasses Britain's Labor government, which has justified its supply of arms to the federal government on the basis that this would keep out the Russians and would enable Britain to maintain its influence with the Nigerians.

The Russians have a long way to go if they are to supplant British influence, however. Trade with Britain amounted to $380 million in 1967, and Britain's United Africa Co. has $280 million tied up in Nigeria. British aid amounts to about $20 million a year. The United States has committed $224 million to Nigeria's 1962-68 development program.

Thanksgiving Day—it's football before dinner

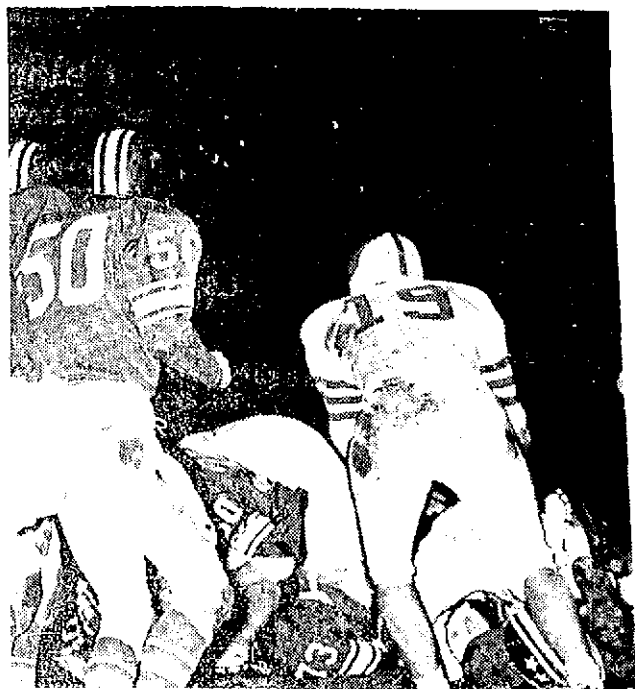

East Stroudsburg

It's been a season of hard knocks for East Stroudsburg's Cavaliers, but against Hellertown, Jim Frailey had enough to burst into the end zone. Frailey has been the mainstay of the Cavalier running game this season.

In the Bangor game, Stevie Miller found himself surrounded by white-shirted Bangor Slaters, who were then riding along unbeaten. Later in the season, Stroudsburg handed the Slaters their first setback.

East Stroudsburg's Terry Snyder (50) watches while a host of Pocono Mountain Cardinals stop a Cavalier ball carrier after a short gain.

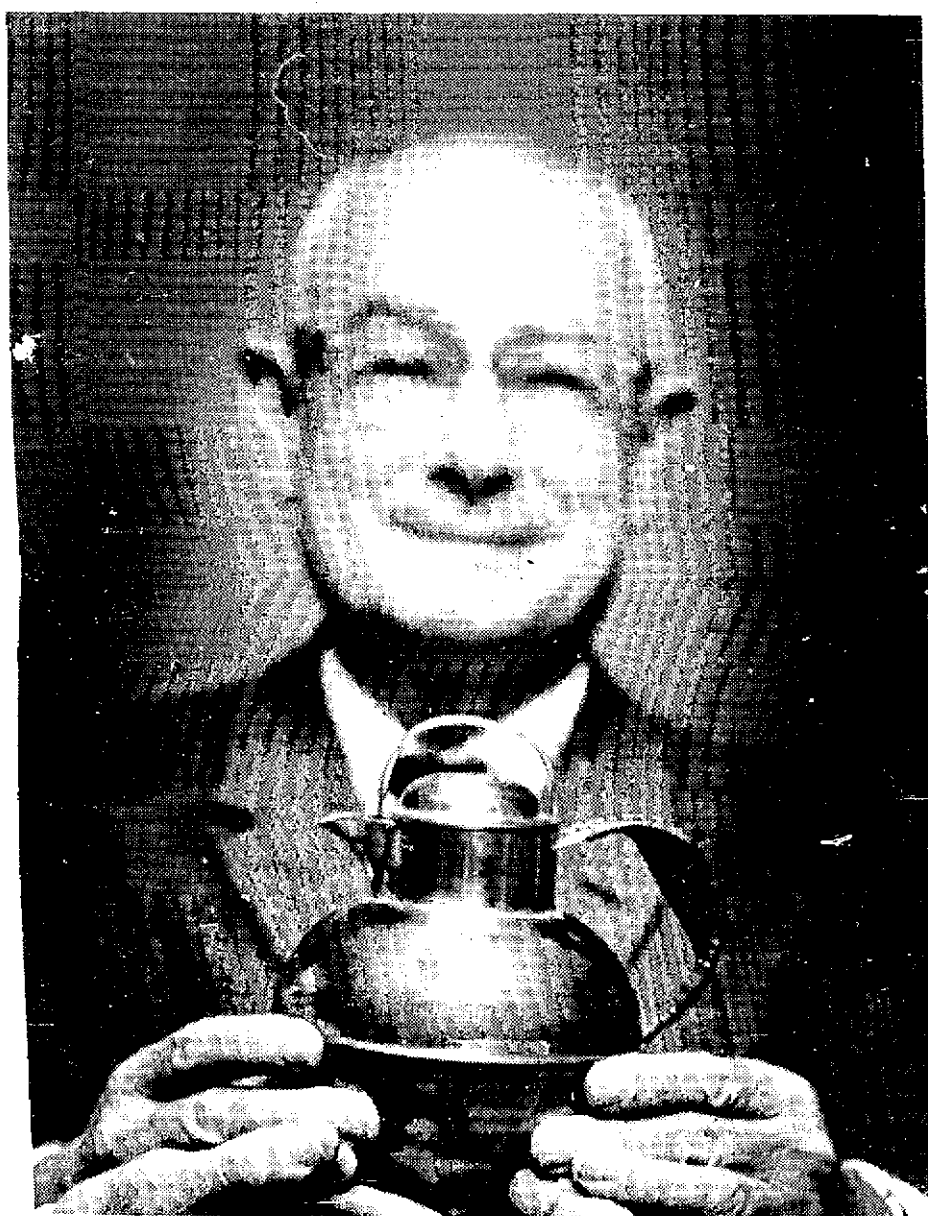

Bangor's Frank Gorman dives into East Stroudsburg's end zone, while the Cavalier's big tackle Ricky Roll closes in the play too late. At times, the Cavaliers have played tough defense, but have been hurt by the "big play" all season.

Stroudsburg

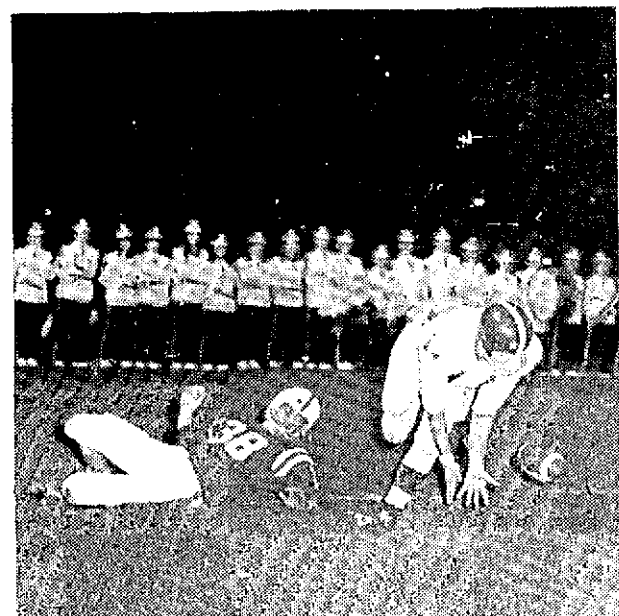

East Stroudsburg will have to defend Stroudsburg's Ed Strunk to win the annual Thanksgiving Day classic. Strunk, shown here attempting to crack a tough Northampton front wall, has been the workhorse of the Mounty attack.

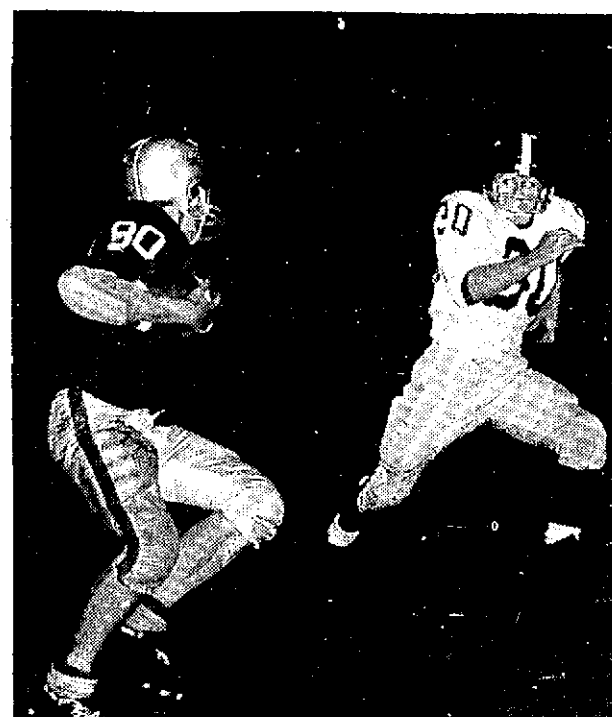

East Stroudsburg High School Principal Ralph Burrows holds the "Little Brown Jug" which his school will try to retain Thursday in the traditional football game against Stroudsburg.

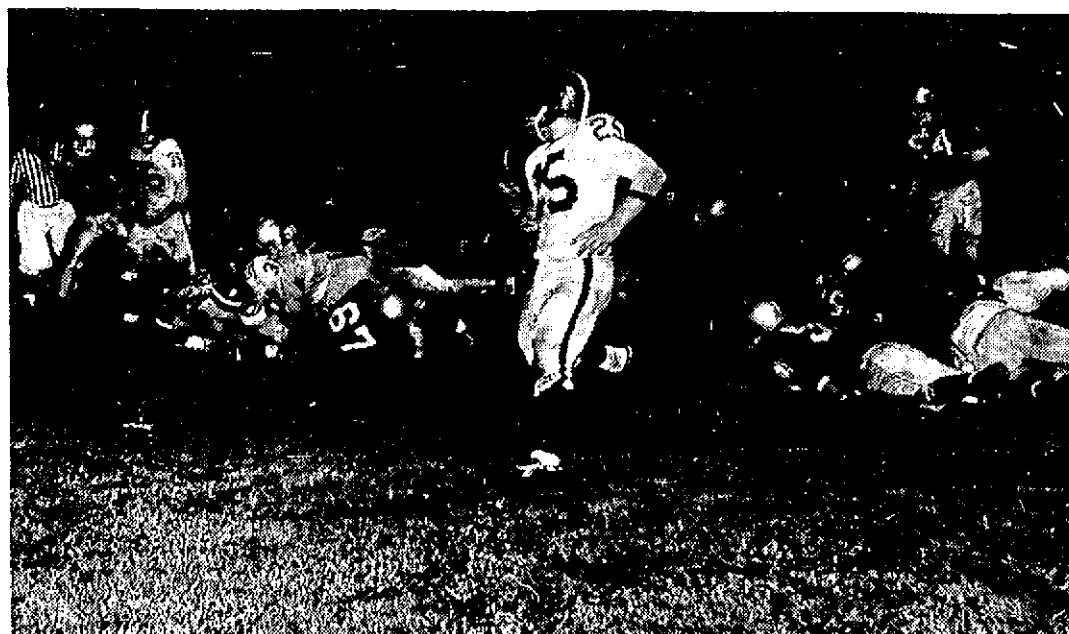

(Staff Photo by MacLeod)

The long pass has hurt coach Andy Silock's Stroudsburg team all year. In the Catasauqua game Tom Keiper almost got his hands on the ball for an interception, while a Rough Rider fell going for the under-thrown pass.

Defense has been the high spot of the season for Stroudsburg. Above, Jim Edinger moves in to head off Lehigh's speedy Monroe Berger.

Straight ahead smashes have been the backbone of Stroudsburg during the season. Above, a Mountaineer ball carrier is brought down after breaking into Lehigh's secondary in the season's opener, which Stroudsburg lost, 21-0.

Helping feed 52 Puritans

I had the weirdest dream the other night. I dreamt it was 1621, and Mother called and said, "Guess who's coming to dinner?"

"You tell me," I said.

"52 Puritans and 90 Indians."

"I believe thy bonnet is too tight and cutting off oxygen to thy brain. How are you going to handle 52 Puritans and 90 Indians?"

"As diplomatic as possible," she said.

"I mean food-wise."

"It's just a simple buffet," she said. "Black bear, wild turkey, venison, wild rice, eels and mussels."

"Prithce, let me help," I said.

"No!" she fairly shouted. "Everything is under control."

"Let me get the black bear before they're all picked over," I suggested.

"Your Father already got one."

"My marinated tomato salad! They'll go crazy for my marinated tomato salad!"

"No. I'm using them to decorate the mantle."

"I know. I'll roast the turkey."

"You roasted the turkey last year and cooked it according to the price and the poundage. A turkey roasted in an 875-degree oven for 15 minutes you don't forget!"

"The bread. I'll bake the bread."

"And that's where Plymouth Rock got its name."

"The pies, then. You'll need help with the pies."

"Whose side you on? The Indians?"

"Thou really knows how to hurt a pioneer in the kitchen, doesn't thou, Mother?"

"Thou are too sensitive," she said. "I have thee down for the same thing thou brought last year."

"Potato chips?"

"Potato chips."

The ring of the phone jarred me awake. I picked up the receiver to hear Mother on the other end of the line ask, "I was wondering if you could come to dinner on Thanksgiving?"

"I know," I sighed. "And yes I can bring the potato chips."

She hesitated. "Actually, your Aunt Betty is bringing the potato chips. I have you down for four folding chairs."

Blessings at Thanksgiving

Ever since the first Thanksgiving celebrated by the Pilgrim fathers, this country has been blessed with abundance. We ask for God's benediction once more upon our beloved land ... long may she prosper!

3rd and McConnell Streets, Stroudsburg

Advertise In The Pocono Record

Thanksgiving Day will be a happier, more meaningful day...

It's a story we all know and love—the first Pilgrim Thanksgiving. The excitement in their little homes must have been pretty much as it is today—the tantalizing smells of roast turkey and pumpkin pie—the bustle and rush of eager children—it must have been a wonderful day!

But before the Pilgrims sat down to their feast they observed the true meaning of Thanksgiving. They all gathered together in their meetinghouse to give thanks for the good they had received, for survival through a long year of hardship, and to pray for the strength and courage to keep their faith in this strange, new land.

This Thanksgiving, why not take your family to your house of worship. A quiet hour of prayer and thanks will make your holiday so much more meaningful.

Wherever you are . . . whatever your beliefs may be . . . take time to offer your words of thanks . . . just as the Pilgrims did more than 300 years ago.

Opening lead—ace of hearts. Let's say you're declarer at six clubs and West leads the ace and another heart, which you win with the queen. There doesn't seem to be much to the play of the hand, since you plan to draw trumps and thus make the rest of the tricks. But when you cash the A-K of trumps, West shows out and you now have a king-size headache on your hands. East apparently has a trump trick coming, since you do not have another club in dummy to lead through his J-9. However, you've been to the wars before and are not quite ready to concede defeat. You may still be able to do East out of his trump trick by executing a trump coup against him. For this plan to succeed, you must reduce your trump length to that of East's. Accordingly, you cash the A-K of diamonds and continue with the queen, on which you discard a spade. Next you play the jack of diamonds, hoping East will be kind enough to ruff, but he discards a spade instead. You ruff anyway, bringing your trump holding down to the Q-10-8 and return to dummy with a spade to lead the king of hearts. Again East discards a spade, but it avails him naught. You ruff the king of hearts and re-enter dummy with your last spade, at which point dummy's last two cards are the J-4 of spades, while East has the J-9 of clubs and you the Q-10. The lead of the spade four puts East out of business. He must ruff and you overruff to bring home the slam. If you attempt to make the contract without ruffing two of dummy's winners, you eventually go down one against proper defense. The trump-reduction process is absolutely essential.

Civil rights movement brought Negro comics up from vaudeville

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer

Was the road from black face to black power paved with a million laughs? Did a funny thing happen on the way out of the ghetto? Was that a belly laugh coming from the back of the bus? The answer is, yes and no. Listen to some Negro comics:

"I sat at a lunch counter for nine months. When they finally integrated, they didn't have what I wanted." Dick Gregory, 1963.

"I keep hearing that black is beautiful. So I painted the inside of my apartment black and the first thing I lost was my bowling ball. Then I couldn't find my wife and kids." Slappy White, 1968.

The civil rights movement gave voice to the Negro comic. White audiences long nurtured on Stepin Fetchit, Rochester and Amos 'n Andy discovered a new kind of Negro comedian.

Many had been around a long time, working the old Negro vaudeville circuit, playing club dates, sometimes appearing on television if they fit what Godfrey Cambridge described as the "image" of what a Negro comedian should be. But largely they were unseen by white audiences until the early 1960s.

"When everybody sees Moms Mabley, they say, my goodness, where does she come from?" said Cambridge. "Where did Pigmeat Markham and here come de judge" come from?

"Well, that's one of the prices white America had to pay for discriminating against black people. Because these people have been working for 50 years."

Not everyone agrees that the past was totally bleak. "Listen," argued Joe Glazer, a veteran booking agent, "Pigmeat Markham and the others were making pretty good money in those days. A thousand dollars a week—that's good money, isn't it?"

Glazer added, "Conditions have changed a lot in the past few years. Television brought all that about."

The Negro comedian the white audience discovered was no shuffling Sambo, rolling his eyes, shooting craps and turning grey when he walked past a cemetery at night. Nor was he a conniving Kingfish. He had something he wanted to get off his chest—and it had nothing to do with stealing chickens or eating watermelon.

Angry, bullheaded Dick Gregory kicked the door down in 1961 and with a buzzsaw delivery he left his white audiences drawn and quartered and clutching each other in laughter. "Segregation is not all bad," he would say, nervously flicking the ashes off his cigarette. "Have you ever heard of a wreck where the people in the back of the bus got hurt?"

Negro humor has always been a masterful combination of the put on and put down. For a hundred years it had been a convenient foxhole the Negro could dive into for shelter in time of need. Now it is on the march.

Fred Weintraub, who gave two unknowns named Bill Cosby and Richard Pryor a boost at the Bitter End in Greenwich Village, said, "It was bad to use ethnic humor for a long time because many thought it was a put down. Today, it's great to give ethnic humor because it gives them roots. But the fine line between the two is what's in good taste."

"But look," he said, "I've watched comedy at the Bitter End for years and I don't think it has anything to do with color. If they're funny, they're funny. A guy like Cosby is going to make it regardless."

Most Negro comedians have begun to turn away from straight-out racial humor. Cosby hasn't relied on it since before his days at the Bitter End. Still, for most, the comedy is within the framework of their Negro culture.

Why do many Negro comics emphasize ethnic humor?

"It's a springboard," says Cambridge, the round Friar Tuck of the black comics. It gives you a solid base. It tells you who you are. People always say Cosby, for example, is non-racial. Well, what does that mean? He grew up in South Philadelphia. Fat Albert one of Cosby's characters is Negro. He doesn't have to mention it all the time, but he is.

Cambridge said that as the civil rights movement progressed, so did the humor. "The back-of-the-bus jokes are out. Now, for instance, my routine deals with my trip to Europe, that I've made it, whatever change, whatever humor you've brought out of it, that's it. So that primarily what is happening is that we're unfolding new experiences as we're allowed to participate in society."

Johnny Carson, as host of the "Tonight" television show, probably has done as much as any man to help the Negro comedians, although he says: "We use them because they're funny, not because they're Negro. Flip Wilson is a very funny man. Occasionally, he'll make some references to the fact that he's colored, but otherwise he stays away from racial material."

"I think that when a Negro comedian only does racial comedy it has to hurt him in the long run," he said. "He can get a laugh because he happens to be colored and because he makes the audience uncomfortable."

Report claims price supports fail farm poor

First of two parts

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's farm programs are a multibillion dollar complex of subsidies, some of which undermine others, and all of which give little help to the small family farmer.

One official view, as expressed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, is to the contrary. "Today," he says, "we have a wide range of programs aimed at underpinning and strengthening America's family agriculture."

But the President's National Advisory Commission on Rural Poverty has disagreed. In a report entitled "The People Left Behind," the commission said: "It is clear that the price support and related programs do very little for the rural farm poor and nothing, directly, for the rural non-farm poor."

The commission added that the existence of farm programs, "if defensible, must be justified on other grounds."

Interviews with farmers from Mississippi to California found none who agreed with Secretary Freeman that the programs' aim is to strengthen family agriculture.

An examination of the Agriculture Department's various farm programs showed:

—Farmers received more than $1 billion this year for holding land out of production, including one payment of $4,091,818 to a single corporate farm, J.G. Boswell Co., of Kings County, Calif.

—Farmers collected millions of dollars from various programs to help them increase production on the land they did plant.

—That as a result, farm production continued to increase faster than the market could absorb it, thus forcing the government to lay out another $1 billion to support crop prices.

—Wealthy Americans are going into farming in a big way, but the suspicion persists, especially among some members of Congress, that the rich are more interested in cultivating tax breaks than crops.

Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., cited an Internal Revenue Service study that said 119 individuals with incomes of more than $1 million in 1965 had farm operations, and 164 of them reported losing money at farming.

But it is the direct subsidies, the huge farm payments, that bother the congressmen, beset as they are with demands for more money for troubled cities.

Cotton is king on Capitol Hill, primarily because Southerners dominate the agriculture committees of both Senate and House. It was for taking land out of cotton production that the Boswell company collected more than $4 million.

A more prominent recipient was Sen. James O. Eastland of Mississippi, a ranking Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee. The senator and members of his family got $211,364 for retiring land from production.

In an attempt to stop such large outlays, the House passed a bill to limit payments to $26,000 to any one farm. But Senate conferees refused to accept it.

Contrasted to this was Congress' amendment to the 1965 farm bill which will pay cotton growers a bonus of up to $150 million in price support payments this year.

Introduced by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, the amendment took away the secretary of agriculture's authority to lower the price support payment on cotton.

Where do all the billions in farm payments go?

The President's commission on rural poverty, using cotton as an example, but citing similar figures for rice, wheat, feed grains and sugar, put it this way:

"The 10 per cent of cotton producers with the smallest payments receive less than 1 per cent of cotton program benefits; the 10 per cent of producers with the largest payments receive more than half of these benefits; and the top 1 per cent of producers in size of payments receive 21 per cent of the benefits."

Freeman dislikes the word subsidy, especially as applied to payments for holding land out of production.

"As a matter of semantics," he told the House Committee on Agriculture. "I do not think there is a subsidy on cotton or wheat or feed grains producers."

"They amount to rental payments . . . It is not in the national interest to produce so much cotton and wheat and corn. And the government says that for one year we will rent so much of your land if you do not plant it."

Call it rent or subsidy, $1,114,617,466 went to 91,887 farms that received payments of $5,000 or more in 1967.

But most of the nation's 3 million farmers received a lot less than $5,000. The average payment per farm in 1967 was $378. And rent or national interest aside, farm production is rising despite the money spent to discourage planting.

Last Oct. 1, the Department of Agriculture predicted the 1968 wheat crop would be a record 1.6 billion bushels.

Students' Yule play to be taped for TV

STROUDSBURG — "O, the Joy of Christmas?" is the doubling theme 12 Stroudsburg High School students will play upon in a satirical short take on commercialism of Christmas.

The group is currently rehearsing at the high school for the performance which was presented last year at the high school for a student assembly.

Presented by the Forensic Club of the school, active persons involved include: Brian Everett, writer and director of the play; Wendy Wells, Thomas Garland, Jane Garland, Richard McClelland, Mark Brown, William Lear, Joe Raynock, Cheryl Transue, Leslie Sheinbaum, Corrine Pansy and Jim Bowers. Assistance is provided by The Rev. and Mrs. Philip Jurus.

The play will be taped for TV channel 39 on Dec. 2 and will premier on Dec. 10, the time to be announced at a later date.

Bishops back Pope on births

SCRANTON — The Roman Catholic Bishop of Scranton Diocese (whose authority extends over Catholics in Monroe and Pike Counties) wrote a letter which was recently published in The Catholic Light, diocesan newspaper.

In it the Most Rev. J. Carroll McCormick, D.D., said that the American Bishops, in a Pastoral Letter just issued, stand solidly behind Pope Paul VI in his Encyclical "Humanae Vitae" (Of Human Life).

Bishop McCormick regretted that "some segments of the press have either distorted or misunderstood that position."

"The Bishops say," he continued, "the Encyclical is an authoritative statement solemnly interpreting imperatives which are divine rather than ecclesiastical in origin. It presents without ambiguity, doubt or hesitation the authentic teaching of the Church concerning the objective evil of that contraception which closes the marital act to the transmission of life, deliberately making it unfruitful. United in collegial solidarity with the Successor of Peter, we proclaim this doctrine."

Bishop McCormick noted that the Bishops stress "that however circumstances may reduce moral guilt, no one following the teaching of the Church can deny the evil of contraception itself."

He noted the Bishops quoted the pontiff in his advice to married couples who face conflicting duties and are caught in "agonizing crises of conscience."

Humanae Vitae, 25 said in part "... And if sin should still keep its hold over them, let them not be discouraged, but rather have recourse with humble perseverance to the mercy of God, which is poured forth in the Sacrament of Penance."

Chile braces for impact of drought

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Summer has almost arrived in Chile, and with it will come the full impact of the nation's worst drought in 100 years.

When Chileans describe disasters, they talk in terms of earthquakes, familiar crippling occurrences in this narrow Andean nation.

Seeking a description for the drought, they liken it to "a slow, silent earthquake."

President Eduardo Frei calls it the nation's "worst catastrophe."

As summer nears, new signs of the drought's effect—higher food prices, electric blackouts, low water pressure—appear each day and portend growing problems of Frei's administration and the nation's nine million people.

Agriculture is hardest hit so far.

Frei says 900,000 sheep, mostly lambs, have died or been slaughtered because of the drought. A U.S. official estimates that between 300,000 and 400,000 cattle have died.

Authorities hard pressed to contain garbage explosion

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer

A garbage explosion that threatens to bury some major cities could turn the brave new world of the future into a giant rubbish heap.

The world's rapidly expanding population is being hard pressed to keep the growing mountains of trash, refuse and waste down to manageable size.

It hasn't happened yet, but New Yorkers got a whiff of what could be the smell as well as the look of things to come when a strike by collectors left some 100,000 tons of garbage heaped high in the streets earlier this year.

Accumulating at the rate of 10,000 tons a day, the situation grew so critical that a health emergency was declared. The city began preparations to give its people shots to protect them from typhoid fever.

While the population of the United States has increased an estimated 30 per cent since 1950, the amount of waste has increased by 60 per cent.

The U.S. Public Health Service estimates that in a typical year Americans throw away over 30 million tons of paper, 4 million tons of plastics, 48 billion cans—more than 250 a person—and 26 billion bottles and jars, or more than 135 a person.

Twenty years ago, when Americans were throwing away less because they couldn't afford to buy more, the average citizen discarded about two pounds of trash a day, the service said. The figure now is about five pounds a head and is expected to reach six pounds in 10 years.

The service estimates the nation spends $3 billion a year trying to get rid of 165 million tons of trash—enough to fill a hole four times the size of the Panama Canal.

And the cost keeps going up. The budget of New York City's Department of Sanitation was $130 million five years ago. Now it's $146 million.

In Colonial days, New York City got rid of its garbage by letting pigs roam freely about the streets to eat it. But even an army of starving pigs couldn't digest the six million tons of refuse the city now produces each year—enough to fill the 102-story Empire State Building, the world's tallest, 30 times. In a city where 30 tons of trash is carried out of the cavernous subway system alone each day, 14,000 sanitation workers battle the daily garbage problem, and they do only half of the mammoth cleanup job. The rest is done by private carting agencies.

Warns Karl Wolf of the American Public Works Association in Chicago: "The major metropolitan areas are standing in front of an avalanche, and it's threatening to bury them."

The recent, rapid growth of the affluent society gets a large share of the blame for the rising tidal wave of garbage that is forcing man to look hard to the protection of his environment before he has none.

The affluent society is a spending society—one in which making-do with an old television set for as long as possible no longer is fashionable.

A society symbolized by a nonreturnable bottle lying at the side of a scenic highway; a throwaway paper dress or diaper; a refrigerator in the gutter; an abandoned automobile rusting in the streets.

"People are throwing away more food than ever before," says a Portland, Ore., sanitation union official. "When I was driving a garbage truck, I'd find turkey carcasses in the cans with so much meat on them they could have fed a whole family. I've seen big chunks of roast beef and halves of hams thrown away."

Which leaves it up to the cities and towns to harvest the derelicts and dispose of them. Philadelphia collects some 20,000 abandoned cars each year; New York had nearly 25,000 last year and expects the figure to jump to 30,000 this year; Little Rock, Ark., police cleared the streets of almost 300 junkers in 1967.

The Automobile Manufacturers Association in Detroit reports an estimated six million cars and 856,000 trucks were junked in 1966. The figures compared with 4.2 million cars and 583,000 trucks in 1960.

The results are a common sight across the nation—a rusty mountain range of rotting cars.

The auto wrecking industry in Southern California disposes of about 400,000 junk cars and trucks each year. The methods it uses to do so, shredding and bailing, also are used in many other parts of the country. Shredding works much like a stone crusher. It produces fist-sized chunks of steel which are sold to industry. In bailing, a car is compressed into a 24-by-26-by-36 inch block of metal.

The height of the automobile graveyards tends to rise and fall with the price of scrap metal. When the scrap market is down, the pile of autos becomes a growing eyesore.

As the garbage piles across the nation grow higher and higher, traditional methods of disposal are growing inadequate.

Sanitation men warn that collection isn't the main problem: "The urgent question is what to do with the refuse and waste once they are assembled."

Burning waste, burying it, using it for landfill are the most common methods for getting the stuff out of sight.

A leading philosophy is: "If you can find a hole that is not in a residential area, you dump it. If you can't, you burn it."

In an effort to make the fill areas last longer, a variety of methods are being used or tested which, basically, try to jam five pounds of garbage into a one pound bag.

While incineration is a standard method for getting rid of waste, it tends to create air pollution.

New York's incinerators cough more than 17,000 tons of soot into the air annually, and there have been times when they have had to be shut down for a few days so the air could clear.

The cities have been spending large sums of money, and will spend more, in an effort to clean up their incinerators.

While man thus far has been able to avoid being buried by the mountains of garbage he creates, many experts are convinced a lasting solution only can be reached through regional planning that requires the urban and rural areas to cooperate with one another.

They suggest a "rail-haul" system in which the wastes of the city would be loaded onto trains—or ships—and dumped in areas scarred by mining or at other selected disposal sites.

Chicago is considering a plan which calls for refuse to be packed into solid blocks, then shipped to abandoned strip mines and quarries within 250 miles of the city, and dumped.

Full-fledged citizen

Michelle Kendall, four, a Vietnamese orphan four years ago, shows her new U. S. flag to her American brother, Marc Longo, one and one-half. Michelle became a full-fledged U. S. citizen in naturalization ceremonies recently at Lansing, Mich. She is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Longo of Lansing.

Big Ben's time 'tilting' but at almost snail's pace

LONDON (AP) — The clock tower containing Big Ben, wartime symbol of Britain to millions around the world, is tilting slowly toward the Thames.

The foundations of the Gothic-style structure that withstood World War II bombing raids have been affected by age and the swift river currents a few yards away, the Works Ministry reported Thursday.

"But there's no danger," a ministry spokesman said. "The tower is tilting at the rate of about one inch every century and our engineers say there is no cause for alarm."

The 316-foot tower was discovered in 1863 to be leaning 15 inches from the perpendicular and has slipped another sixteenth of an inch since then.

"This is not unusual among buildings beside rivers," the spokesman said. "As a matter of fact, the taller Victoria Tower at the other end of the Houses of Parliament is also slightly out of kilter."

The ministry measures the lean yearly but is planning no special measures to support the tower, the spokesman added. In comparison, the Leaning Tower of Pisa, only 180 feet high, is more than 16 feet out of line.

The Big Ben tower was erected in the 1850s as part of new parliament buildings designed by Charles Barry to replace those destroyed in an 1834 fire. Its clock, with four faces each 23 feet across, began keeping time in 1859.

The origin of the name "Big Ben" is obscure. Historians say it may have been derived from Sir Benjamin Hall, commissioner of works in the 1850s, or from Benjamin "Big Ben" Caunt, a champion boxer of the time.

Strictly speaking, the name belongs only to the 13½-ton bell that tolls the hours. But Big Ben has, over the years, come to mean the entire clock and even the tower, itself.

Two cities owe $11 million to teachers' fund

HARRISBURG (AP) — Philadelphia and Pittsburgh's financially pressed school districts owe more than $11 million in teachers' retirement fund payments on bills dating back more than a year, the Associated Press learned recently.

An AP review of the Pennsylvania School Employees Retirement System (PSERS) records showed Philadelphia owes some $9 million dating back to July, 1967, with an estimated $5 million more due on Jan. 1.

Pittsburgh Area School District, the records showed, have unpaid pension fund bills totaling more than $2 million and will owe about $1.2 million more after Jan. 1.

The bills are for the school districts' share of fund contributions, PSERS secretary Rex Wrye reported. Payments made by employees through payroll deduction have been made as well as the state's share.

"We don't consider them (Philadelphia and Pittsburgh) delinquent yet," said Wrye. "We intend to give them until March 10, the day the January bills are due, to make some sort of back payment."

Then, he said, some sort of pressure will be used, such as threatened cutoff of state aid.

He said this procedure is used with the very small percentage of school districts — about 30 or 40 districts — that get dangerously in arrears each year. "They always pay up before any aid is cut off," he said.

In the case of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Wrye said, the retirement fund has been tolerant since "both districts ... have been having financial problems."

But Eugene Weaver, executive director of finance for the Philadelphia school board, charged the PSERS billing system is behind. He said Philadelphia paid the last bill it received in August.

"We don't feel we're delinquent until we're billed for it," said Weaver.

In Pittsburgh, a school system spokesman said, "We are not delinquent in our payments." Al Colautti, assistant superintendent for business, said Pittsburgh's policy of paying its share a year after each six-month accounting period "is customary."

Colautti said, "We have already set aside toward the employers' contribution to the pension fund the amount of $1,998,000 for the period through October of this year."

He said the funds are being held in escrow and will be paid next year.

The past due funds are in no way jeopardizing the financial health of the fund and retirement benefits are not affected by it, Wrye said. He estimated the current assets of the fund at $1.7 billion.

However, failure to get the payments in on time has cost PSERS about $1.2 million in interest based on Wrye's estimate of a 6.5 per cent current earning rate on the fund's corporate bond investments.

PSERS records show Philadelphia paid all but $53,000 of its $4,071,781 bill for the six-month period ended June 30, 1967, in August of this year.

Pittsburgh paid its $998,000 bill for the same period in August, also.

Still unpaid are the bills for the two succeeding six-month periods. Wrye said these will be even larger than June 30, 1967, because teachers' salaries and the number of teachers have increased.

Under this year's contribution formula, each teacher contributes 5½ per cent of his income to the fund, while the state and school district each contribute an amount equal to 4.26 per cent of his income.

Philadelphia's contributions amount to about 18 per cent of the fund's annual revenue, Wrye said. Pittsburgh's share accounts for about 4 per cent.

Vo-Tech school needs approval

STROUDSBURG — The chances of establishing a Vocational-Technical school in Monroe County will no doubt hinge on final approval from two area school boards, Pleasant Valley and East Stroudsburg.

Neither school has as yet given even initial approval to the Articles of Agreement and operation of the proposed Monroe County Vo-Tech School. Both Stroudsburg Area School board and Pocono Mountain school board approved the Articles of Agreement this year, Stroudsburg in January and Pocono Mountain last week.

The Articles of Agreement are only guidelines which will be followed in establishing the Vo-Tech School. Approval of the Articles of Agreement by Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountain does not necessarily mean that these boards will give final approval to the Vo-Tech School.

However, approval of the Articles of Agreement seem to indicate that a majority of board members from both Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountain will give the green light to the Vo-Tech School.

East Stroudsburg Area School Board meets tonight and according to Mrs. Pauline Peterson, school superintendent, discussion of the proposed Vo-Tech school is on the board's agenda.

East Stroudsburg Area school district has been reeling financially from the loss of property tax on land taken from the district for Tocks Island National Recreation Park. The district has lost out on both land and population to the tune of at least $100,000.

"All our school board members would be for the Vo-Tech school if we had the money," Mrs. Peterson said Sunday.

She placed the Middle School Community College and Vo-Tech school as all equally important in giving the best education possible to all the children of all the people in the school district.

John C. Mills, supervising principal of Pleasant Valley School District said Sunday that Pleasant Valley school board members are completely undecided as to whether they will approve or reject the proposed Vo-Tech school.

Mills cited two problems in contemplating a Vo-Tech school in Monroe County: curriculum scheduling and bus transportation. State mandated courses have to fall into a prescribed morning and afternoon schedule, Mills said. Most districts in the area will have to expand the route of a regular bus driver for a Vo-Tech school, he added. Also a bus couldn't leave for a run to the Vo-Tech school until the bus finished its regular run to the school district.

"If a district has to issue a new bus contract or buy an additional bus for the Vo-Tech run, that will mean more money," Mills said.

At present Pleasant Valley is still paying for two building programs, the high school and Toldred Elementary school.

Pocono Mountain District School superintendent Dr. William F. Nye in favoring a Vo-Tech School cited a definite need for terminal education for a large number of students that could take advantage of the varied trades offered by a Vo-Tech school.

One of Pocono Mountain's highest priorities is the present need for additional classroom space. A proposed Middle School and a Vo-Tech School would eliminate classroom crowding at both Pocono Mountain and Stroudsburg Area School District.

Acting superintendent of Stroudsburg Area Schools, Samuel O. Wells III said Sunday that the establishment of a Vo-Tech school would present no conflict with Stroudsburg area school's plans for a Middle School.

Wells admitted that a Vo-Tech school might pose some difficult financial problems for the Stroudsburg School district but at the same time he emphasized that if the area people are really interested in a Vo-Tech then it should be "a must" for Monroe County.

Arab chutzpah

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israel Export Institute printing center is pondering an order from an unexpected source for two books, "Workers Education in Israel" and "Communal Education in the Kibbutz." It reported the books were asked for by the research center of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a militant anti-Israeli Arab group based in Lebanon.

Monroe County employment shows seasonal decline

STROUDSBURG — The general employment picture in the Monroe County area for October showed a relative seasonal decline since mid-August as the closing down of summer camps and resorts accounted for a drop of 2,200 workers in the service industry. Total employment for October was 23,800 with a total decline of 2,700 workers since mid-August. Construction, transportation and public utilities accounted for a decline of 200 workers during the same period. Another loss of 300 workers was listed under the self-employed and unpaid family and domestic workers.

Manufacturing industries remained constant with 5,500 workers and farm employment was the same at 800.

Compared to last year, the total employment was slightly higher this year, by 600 workers for October.

Despite the return to work of per diem workers in area schools, total government employment remained constant due to the offsetting loss experienced in federal government employment.

Area unemployment remained constant for the same period, at 300. Unemployment compensation claims filed in the county during the mid-week in October numbered 78, a decline of seven from the 85 claims filed during a comparable week in August.

The Stroudsburg Employment Security Office had on file at the end of October, 311 unfilled job openings. Most of these job openings were from a new employer locating in the area coupled with a variety of job openings for the hotel industry chiefly for waiters and busboys.

About 2,200 U.S. servicemen and fewer than 100 Japanese were killed in the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Robot hearts

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Christian Barnard, South African heart transplant pioneer, told a young business executive meeting in London people should be educated to donate their organs for use after they die, and he made this prediction: "There is a great possibility that the heart will be the first organ to be replaced by a mechanical device."

French franc bounces back

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors gave the stock market another powerful boost Tuesday in active trading.

The easing of international monetary tensions and reports that the Saigon government soon will join the Vietnam talks in Paris helped stimulate demand.

The French franc, under considerable pressure much of last week, rebounded on European money markets. Wall Street, meanwhile, was confident the dollar would remain sound, although there was still some uncertainty regarding France's ability to avoid devaluation of its currency.

In addition, traders were cheered by continued bright reports from the nation's steel industry. Steel production last week soared to its highest level since late July. This came on the heels of a recent forecast that steel ordering will pick up sharply during the early part of next year.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, jumped 0.60 per cent on 1,608 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 905 advanced and 514 declined. There were 180 new highs and seven new lows.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials picked up 8.14 to 979.49, its best level since Feb. 15, 1966 when it stood at 982.40.

The New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a rise of 35 cents in the average common share price.

Turnover ballooned to 16,630,000 shares, up from 14,400,000 on Monday.

Lionel Corp. topped the list of 15 most active issues, which included 14 winners and one loser. It rose 3/4 to 15 1/2 on 265,300 shares.

Reynolds Metal, trading ex-dividend, moved into second, dipping 3/4 to 44 1/4 on 237,500 shares changing hands.

Gulf & Western rounded out the three most heavily traded stocks, rising 3/4 to 60 on 210,500 shares.

American Smelting, tenth most active, spurred 1 1/4 following a Pennzoil merger bid. The latter, seventh on the active list, added 1/2.

New gas company office

The Stroudsburg Gas Company's new office, located on lower Main St., in Stroudsburg, is rapidly nearing completion. The office was formerly located on Stroudsburg's S. 7th St. and the move was made because of the expansion of the First Stroudsburg National Bank.

State Highway Department appoints deputy engineer

HARRISBURG — William J. Raves, 58, of Ebers, York County, has been named Deputy Chief Engineer for Western Pennsylvania by the State Highway Department.

Raves, with 32 years of service, will succeed Robert C. Tossner whose retirement will become effective Dec. 18. During the past 10 years Raves has been the Department's Chief Construction Engineer.

The announcement was made by Secretary Robert G. Bartlett who added that Phillips W. Amos, 38, of Bonny Brook Road, Harrisburg, has been promoted to succeed Raves. Amos has been with the Department since 1958.

"Each has demonstrated capabilities of greater responsibility," Secretary Bartlett said, "and it is gratifying that we can fill these top-level positions from within the Department."

PP&L host for study

STROUDSBURG — Acceptance of electric home heating among Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. customers has reached the point where other American utilities are sending representatives to study PP&L's policies and programs.

Paul G. Martin, supervisor of residential modernization for Duke Power Co., Charlotte, N.C., visited PP&L's general office in Allentown last week to study the utility's success in the conversion market—the replacing of other kinds of heating systems with electric in existing dwellings.

Edwin J. Werley, PP&L manager-residential sales and Martin's host, explained that of more than 36,000 electric home

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Consistency and moderation should be the day's key words. With them, and some many fine talents directed to worthwhile channels, you should make fine strides.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Your planetary influences, not particularly generous, warn that you keep on your toes so as not to fall wittily into traps, make foolish blunders. Many responsibilities are yours now, so do the hang-up job you can.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — You should have generally soothed your, but if you SHOULD run into obstacles take them in stride. You CAN hurdle them—and wind up the day satisfactorily.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A suggestion to which you have not given much previous thought could, quite unexpectedly, open the door to success. Give every proposal serious consideration.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Not everyone will see things as you do, but be tolerant of divergent opinions—and LISTEN to all. You COULD, quite conceivably, gain new insight into a hitherto insoluble problem.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Planetary influences favorable. Your perception and intuition should be keen now. Get into the spirit of things and do your utmost, which can be substantial Good progress in the making.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Inspiration may be lacking, but that should only spur your determination to further good and constructive efforts. Emphasize your innate orderliness and systematic way of doing things.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Wait for results without becoming anxious.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Consider all new propositions and suggestions carefully before accepting. Some deceptive influences, now prevalent, could lead to unpleasant involvements unless you are alert.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — You may encounter some unexpected situations but, in general, prudence and steadiness will keep the boat from rocking. Your innate adaptability can be a big aid.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Advancement may be fractional, but this is normal occasionally. Just remain constant, steady at the wheel. Be sure your energies and talents are directed into constructive channels.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your intuition plus your practicality can help you stay on top, evaluate—and solve—problems more easily. Business interests favored.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You BORN TODAY are extremely versatile and will show definite leanings toward certain interests early in life. These could be in the business or industrial world, in which you could achieve great success; in the legal field, where you would make an excellent trial lawyer and/or jurist; or in the literary or musical fields. In the former, you would probably prefer journalistic work; in the latter, you could excel as pianist or song writer. Outstanding traits: Integrity, reliability, perceptiveness, good judgement, remarkable intuition and a philosophical attitude toward life. Birthdate of: Guillaume Dufay, French musician; David Merrick, theatrical producer.

Skirts stir dispute in school

CANADENSIS — Jeanne Gibbins and Karen Prell have been on the honor roll more times than they've been off it and Jill Asure's an above average student.

Jill's a blonde, Karen's a brunette and Jeanne can do almost anything with her hair, it's that long. All three girls have pretty faces and nice figures and attend Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School.

Sunday night at the Prell home in Canadensis Jeanne was wearing a Navy blue wool skirt; Karen, a grey wool skirt; and Jill, a brown imitation leather skirt.

All three skirts were short, but whether they were short enough to be told that they were too short by a Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School guidance counselor, assistant principal and principal is the key of the dispute between the girls and their mothers and school authorities.

Mrs. Richard Prell, Karen's mother, said she wanted something to go by on judging when a high school girl's skirt is too short.

The revised Pocono Mountain High School student-faculty dress code lists a "unacceptable" "skirts" that are offensively short.

But just what is "offensively short?" That's what Mrs. Prell and Mrs. Gibbins want to know. "We want a definite rule to go by," Mrs. Prell said. "Long legs, short legs, it's where the knee is, and that's where you should measure."

The Prells recently received a letter from Harry Werkheiser, assistant principal of Pocono Mountain High School. The letter claimed that Karen had violated the student council dress code on four separate occasions. Each time her skirt was too short.

"If Karen can not, or will not follow the rules of the student council code, she will be sent home and requested to change to a more suitable dress code," the letter said. "If Karen continually refuses to obey the rules we may have to suspend her from school for direct disobedience," the letter added.

All three girls have at one time or another been told that their skirts have been too short. Jeanne Gibbins, a 16-year-old junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gibbins of Swiftwater, said that she was told twice by Werkheiser that her skirt was too short. "Once he told me to let the hem down and another time he said I could wear the skirt at a football game but not in the school."

U. S. expects Saigon will join talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. administration expects the Saigon government to announce soon it is now ready to join the peace talks in Paris.

Whether this will happen in hours or in days nobody ventures to say. But the best guess seems to be that the Saigon announcement will come this week.

High State Department sources, in reporting this, cautioned that, as one of them put it, "not everything has been worked out."

The official advised "utmost caution" because of the disappointment on Oct. 31. At that time, he recalled, Washington had every reason to believe President Nguyen Van Thieu had agreed to the "package" of halting the bombing of North Vietnam and transforming the bilateral Paris talks into a four-party affair.

This proposal, agreed to by Hanoi, had the United States and South Vietnam on one side of the table, and North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front on the other.

Too short, not short enough, just right . . . who is to say just how short a short skirt should be? These three Pocono Mountain High School girls would like the answer to that fascinating question. From left to right, Jeanne Gibbins, Jill Asure and Karen Prell.

Mrs. Gibbins said unless you have a specific rule on the length of a skirt, who is to decide what is "offensively short?"

Jill Asure's 15, a sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Asure of Memorytown. "A lot of women teachers don't mind short skirts," Jill said. "It's the style."

According to Jill, she was called in to see Mrs. Bernice Pollan, a high school guidance counselor. "Mrs. Pollan told me my dress was too short," Jill said. "But she also said that it was beautiful and striking."

"My daughter is going to wear what she wants unless and when the school has a specific rule on just how short a skirt should be," Mrs. Asure said.

Both Mrs. Asure and Mrs. Prell agreed that the school needs to clarify the rule on short skirts. The three girls maintain that many other girls wear dresses shorter than the ones they've been wearing and they wonder why these girls haven't been called in on the carpet for wearing "offensively short" dresses.

The other three area high schools, like Pocono Mountain, do not have specific dress codes for girls' skirts.

"When you get specific about the length of a girl's skirt, you might get in trouble," said Mrs. Pauline Peterson, superintendent of East Stroudsburg Area High School.

According to Mrs. Peterson, the student council handbook approved by the steering committee of the teacher's council says that a girl's skirt should be "in good taste."

"You must not forget that the students have rights and privileges in what to wear, in what is today's accepted norm," Mrs. Peterson said. "Look at Jackie Onassis and some of the short skirts she wears. What do you expect our girls to do?"

Pleasant Valley High School's dress code is unwritten and merely demands, "decency in dress," according to supervising principal John Mills.

Samuel O. Wells III, assistant supervisor of Stroudsburg Area Junior-Senior High School also said that school's dress code is "unwritten."
